

HHI Windows and Doors Expands Casement and Awning Windows Installation Services

August 20, 2026

BLUFFTON, SC - August 20, 2026 -

HHI Windows and Doors, a Bluffton-based window and door replacement company, has expanded its casement and awning window installation services. This expansion reflects interest in energy-efficient, climate-appropriate solutions in the Lowcountry. Homeowners often look for options that improve ventilation, support indoor comfort, and perform well in coastal weather conditions.

HHI Windows and Doors serves homeowners throughout Bluffton, Hilton Head Island, Beaufort and Jasper County communities, Savannah, and other select nearby Lowcountry areas. The company operates from a showroom at 32 Malphrus Road, Unit 117, in Bluffton. The focus on casement and awning windows highlights features many homeowners value, including airflow, insulation performance, and natural light.

Casement windows play a central role in current projects. These side-hinged windows open outward to capture breezes and provide unobstructed views. When closed, the sash fits tightly against the frame, which can help reduce drafts and support more stable interior temperatures, especially when paired with appropriate glass and frame materials. The company emphasizes accurate measurement, proper frame preparation, and thorough sealing to help support long-term performance.

Awning windows are designed to allow ventilation during light rain when properly installed and used, thanks to their top-hinged design. Hinged at the top and opening outward, they shed water while allowing airflow. This style is often used in areas that benefit from privacy and fresh air, such as bathrooms, bedrooms, and higher wall placements. When paired with other window types, awning units can help balance light, views, and cross-ventilation.

The added emphasis on casement and awning windows aligns with homeowner interest in energy efficiency and durable materials for coastal homes. Energy efficiency is a common consideration for homeowners in Bluffton, Hilton Head, and surrounding areas who are seeking long-term comfort and cost control. Properly installed and sealed window systems can help reduce air leakage and support more consistent indoor temperatures, which are common priorities when homeowners plan window upgrades.

In coastal areas, homeowners and installers often consider corrosion resistance, structural durability, and exposure to wind and moisture. HHI Windows and Doors evaluates window and door lines with these needs in mind. They focus on frame composition, hardware quality, and construction. The company also installs other window styles, including double-hung and picture windows, for both single-room upgrades and whole-home projects.

The company manages projects ranging from single window replacements to full multi-room jobs. Project timelines vary based on the number of windows involved, the condition of the existing openings, and the amount of preparation required. During planning and installation, the team measures, fits, seals, and insulates each opening. These steps are intended to help improve resistance to air and water infiltration while supporting durability and day-to-day performance.

Ongoing home updates and renovation activity in Bluffton and nearby communities continue to support interest in window replacement and upgrades. Property owners updating homes or building new ones often seek solutions that match regional architectural styles and address ventilation, natural light, and energy efficiency. Casement and awning windows are a common choice in residential projects, especially where operable windows can improve comfort and everyday usability.
