

AMARA Subway Shares New Guide for Office and Group Catering

August 14, 2026

August 14, 2026 -

AMARA Subway has published a new guide, "Subway Catering in Kennesaw, GA: Office Lunches & Group Orders," with practical information for planning office lunches, campus events, and other group meals in the Kennesaw area. Published on May 12, 2026, the resource covers catering formats, advance notice, order sizes, and pickup and delivery options.

The guide focuses on two AMARA Subway locations serving the area. The Due West restaurant at Stilesboro Crossing serves offices and organizations along the Kennesaw Due West corridor. The Hidden Forest Court restaurant serves groups near Kennesaw State University.

"Group meal planning often comes down to having a clear headcount, enough notice, and an ordering format that fits the event," said Alex Laldin, marketing director at AMARA Subway. "The new guide puts those planning details in one place so offices, campus groups, and event organizers can understand the available options before placing an order."

The resource describes two main catering formats: individual box lunches and shared party platters. Box lunches include a made-to-order sub, chips, and a cookie, with each meal packaged separately. According to the guide, individual packaging can work well for meetings, training sessions, and other events that require separate portions or meal labels.

Party platters offer another option for group meals. Each platter contains five footlong sandwiches cut into 15 portions and is intended for events where attendees serve themselves. The guide identifies social events and team gatherings as examples of occasions where shared platters may be suitable.

AMARA Subway also explains the planning requirements for catering orders. The company asks customers to provide at least 24 hours of notice and says 48 hours is appreciated for orders of more than 50 box lunches. Organizers are encouraged to confirm the expected headcount, event date, dietary needs, and pickup or delivery plans before finalizing an order.

Pickup is available at both locations discussed in the guide. Delivery is also available for qualifying catering orders. The company states that having access to two kitchens can provide additional capacity when larger group orders need to be prepared.

The guide covers several types of events that may require group meals in the Kennesaw area. These include recurring office lunches, company meetings, employee training sessions, and new employee orientations. School events, sports gatherings, and other organized group activities are also discussed.

Campus catering receives separate attention in the resource. The Hidden Forest Court restaurant is located near Kennesaw State University and serves student organizations, athletic teams, academic departments, and housing events. The guide provides campus organizers with information about meal formats and advance ordering to help them plan around attendance and event schedules.

For business customers, the guide also discusses catering needs along the Due West corridor. AMARA Subway reports that organizations in the area use group orders for weekly or monthly lunches, quarterly meetings, and training days. The resource also addresses catering for medical and dental offices, schools, and businesses in nearby commercial areas.

The new article gives organizers practical information to consider before an event. It explains lead times, meal formats, pickup and delivery options, and the information needed to prepare an order. These details give offices, campus groups, and other organizations a clear reference when planning group meals.

AMARA Subway operates six Subway locations across West and North Cobb County, including restaurants in Acworth, Kennesaw, Marietta, and Powder Springs. The company provides Subway menu items and catering for office lunches, events, and group meals through its area locations.
