

Index Fence Marks Sixth Year With Nearly 2,000 Installations

August 14, 2026

RALEIGH, NC - August 14, 2026 -

Index Fence Inc., a residential fence installation company serving the Raleigh metro since 2020, has installed close to 2,000 fences across the area heading into its sixth year in business, a volume the company has built almost entirely on steady residential growth around the region.

The company opened in 2020 and added projects through a stretch of heavy new-home construction and out-of-state moves into Wake County. Index Fence has tracked that demand firsthand, with the bulk of its work concentrated in Raleigh and the towns that ring it, among them Cary, Wake Forest, Knightdale, and Fuquay-Varina, where new subdivisions filled in quickly over the same period. The count now sits just under 2,000 residential installations, a figure the company expects to pass before the end of the year.

Index Fence is a veteran-owned business owned by Miguel Pagan. It holds an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau, is a member of the American Fencing Association, and was named a Nextdoor Favorite in 2025 in the Raleigh area. The company works out of a physical office rather than a home address or a call center, and has stayed in the same market for the full six years.

Most of that volume is vinyl privacy fencing, which accounts for roughly 70 percent of the company's projects, followed by aluminum and wood. On city fence permits, Index Fence prepares the paperwork as part of its quote instead of leaving it to the homeowner, and on projects inside a homeowners association it assembles the architectural review documents for the owner to submit. Raleigh charges $264 for a residential fence permit, and handling that step ahead of time removes a common source of delay before a crew breaks ground.

The construction behind the number stays consistent from job to job. The company builds with materials made in the United States, including virgin vinyl, which is vinyl produced from new rather than recycled stock and holds its color and stiffness longer in the sun. On six-foot wood and vinyl fences, crews frame with three horizontal rails rather than the two common on many residential builds, which shortens the unsupported span each picket hangs from and helps the fence line stay straight as it ages. Posts are set two feet deep in 80 to 100 pounds of concrete.

Much of the repeat and referral work traces back to how the company handles the front end. Local staff answer the phones during business hours, and the company commits to returning calls within an hour. Its office at 4901 Craftsman Dr is open to walk-in visitors, who can handle the same boards and posts the crews install before they sign a contract. The company also offers financing for all credit scores, which keeps larger projects moving without a separate trip to a lender.

"When we started in 2020 there were already plenty of fence companies here, and a lot more have shown up since," said Behzad Namazifard, chief operating officer of Index Fence Inc. "Getting close to 2,000 fences in six years did not come from being the low bid. It came from people walking into the shop, seeing what we actually put in the ground, and telling their neighbors."
