

Arrowhead Clinic Atlanta Marks Four Decades of Chiropractic Care for Accident Injuries

August 13, 2026

ATLANTA, GA - August 13, 2026 -

Arrowhead Clinic Chiropractor Atlanta has reached more than 48 years of operation providing chiropractic treatment for musculoskeletal and accident-related injuries in the Georgia market. The milestone reflects the clinic's continued work in a field where demand for care following vehicular collisions remains steady across the region.

Arrowhead Clinic in Atlanta operates from its Cascade Road facility, where the practice provides chiropractic adjustments, physical therapy, massage therapy, decompression therapy, and corrective exercises. The clinic treats conditions including lower back pain, sciatica, whiplash, migraines, sports injuries, and auto accident injuries. Treatment plans are developed for each patient following an initial examination. The clinic reports that its patient base spans individuals recovering from recent collisions as well as those managing longer-term musculoskeletal conditions.

A significant portion of the clinic's caseload involves Atlanta auto accident injury treatment. According to guidance from the American Chiropractic Association and similar professional bodies, individuals involved in motor vehicle collisions are commonly advised to seek evaluation because certain injuries, such as soft tissue strains, can develop or become apparent in the days following an incident. The clinic uses examinations that include digital X-ray evaluations to assess reported symptoms and document findings before recommending a course of care. This diagnostic step is intended to identify injuries that may not produce immediate symptoms at the time of an incident.

Dr. Clifton Weldon a chiropractor at the clinic, noted that the practice structures care around ongoing assessment rather than a single visit. "Chiropractic care for injury recovery typically involves a series of visits scheduled over several weeks, with periodic reassessment," Weldon said. "The goal at each stage is to evaluate how a patient is responding and adjust the plan accordingly, which is standard practice in musculoskeletal rehabilitation."

Weldon added that the clinic incorporates patient education into its process. "Explaining a diagnosis and the purpose of each treatment step is part of informed care," Weldon said. "Patients who understand what a treatment plan involves are generally better positioned to follow through with scheduled appointments and recommended exercises."

The clinic notes that patient feedback gathered over the four-decade period has informed how its staff communicates with individuals during recovery, including the front desk personnel and treatment staff who coordinate ongoing appointments. Weldon said the clinic views consistent communication across all staff roles as part of the overall treatment process.

The practice operates from our Cascade Road clinic location Monday through Friday, with the office closed on Saturdays and Sundays. The Cascade Road office follows the same treatment protocols used across the clinic's other Georgia facilities, which maintain consistent standards across the network.
