September 01, 2026 -

J&E Roofing Solutions, a family-owned and owner-operated roofing contractor with 18 years of industry experience, has formally expanded its metal roofing services to meet growing demand from property owners seeking durable, long-lasting roofing options throughout Southwest Missouri and Northwest Arkansas.

The expanded offering from J&E Roofing Solutions Metal Roofing covers new installation, repair, routine maintenance, custom solutions, coating and sealing, inspections, and upgrades of aging metal roofs. The company works with several metal roofing types, including corrugated sheets, standing seam panels, metal tile sheets, and stone-coated steel sheets, providing property owners a range of options across different budgets and architectural styles.

Metal roofing systems offer distinct performance characteristics when compared with traditional asphalt shingles. A quality metal roof can last 40 to 70 years, while asphalt shingle roofs typically last 20 to 25 years. Metal reflects solar heat to help reduce cooling costs and resists fire, mildew, insects, and rot. Most metal roofing systems are rated to withstand wind speeds up to 140 miles per hour and to resist hail impact. Industry data indicates that metal roofing can increase a home's resale value by as much as 6 percent, with many homeowners recouping 85 to 95 percent of installation costs.

"Property owners in this region face intense summer heat and severe storm seasons, and they are looking for roofing systems built to handle both," said Elias, speaking for J&E Roofing Solutions. "The expansion of the metal roofing division allows the company to offer materials and installation methods that address those regional demands while giving homeowners choices that fit their style and their budget."

As an Owens Corning Preferred Contractor, the company adheres to strict standards for material quality and installation practices. The metal roofing expansion complements the company's existing services, which include shingle roof replacements, roof repair, gutter replacement and repair, low slope residential roofing, and commercial roofing.

The company also assists customers who are navigating insurance claims related to storm or roof damage. Working alongside insurance providers, the team helps homeowners document damage and pursue appropriate coverage for necessary repairs and replacements.

"Storm damage claims can be confusing for homeowners, especially when timing and documentation matter," said Elias. "Part of the role at J&E Roofing Solutions is guiding customers through that process so they understand their options and can make informed decisions about repair or replacement."

The expansion is expected to contribute to the local economy, with the company planning to hire regional talent as demand for metal roofing continues to grow. The move reflects the company's ongoing commitment to community economic stability and dependable roofing solutions.
