UKIAH, CA - August 12, 2026 -

Missing teeth can affect more than the appearance of a smile, often influencing how a person chews, speaks, and approaches everyday dental care. For patients considering ways to replace missing teeth, Khoury Dentistry provides restorative dentistry services and guidance on options such as dental implants in Ukiah, CA, dental bridges, crowns, and partial dentures. The practice serves patients in Ukiah and the surrounding Mendocino County community from its office on South Dora Street.

Tooth loss can occur for many reasons, including decay, injury, infection, or the eventual removal of a tooth that can no longer be maintained. Once a tooth is missing, the discussion often turns to how the open space should be addressed. The answer can depend on the location of the missing tooth, the condition of neighboring teeth, oral health, and the type of restoration being considered. Rather than treating every missing-tooth case the same way, the process begins with understanding the condition of the individual patient's mouth.

Dental implants are one option that may be considered when replacing missing teeth. An implant serves as a foundation for a dental restoration rather than relying solely on adjacent natural teeth for support. Khoury

Dentistry also provides dental crowns, which can be used to cover damaged natural teeth or be attached to implants. The practice's approach gives patients an opportunity to discuss how different restorative options relate to their particular dental needs.

Bridges offer another approach to replacing missing teeth. A fixed dental bridge generally uses teeth next to an open space as supports for an artificial replacement tooth. Khoury Dentistry describes bridges as restorations created to fill spaces left by missing teeth, with the replacement structure supported by neighboring abutment teeth. The practice also notes dental implants as an option that may be discussed when a tooth has been lost or extracted.

For patients with multiple missing teeth, removable partial dentures may also be considered. These appliances are designed to fill spaces while using remaining natural teeth for stability. Khoury Dentistry provides full and partial denture services and works with dental laboratories during the fabrication process. The practice explains that partial dentures may require several visits for preparation, fitting, and adjustments as patients become accustomed to the appliance.

The range of choices underscores why an evaluation matters before selecting a restoration. Patients researching dental implants in Ukiah, CA may also need to understand how implants compare with bridges or removable appliances in the context of their own oral health. A dentist can evaluate the teeth, gums, bite, and other relevant factors before discussing appropriate treatment options.

Dr. Nicholas Khoury, a general dentist who was born and raised in Ukiah, established the practice after returning to the area.
