August 14, 2026 -

S-Line Contractors, a commercial general contractor based in Southern California, has formally expanded its electrical contractor division to serve commercial and industrial clients across four counties. The move addresses growing demand for licensed electrical work in the region and consolidates services under a single, fully certified provider.

The expanded division supports businesses in Los Angeles County, Riverside County, Orange County, and San Bernardino County. Services include lighting design and installation, electrical panel upgrades and installations, wiring and rewiring, safety inspections, code compliance, and emergency electrical response. Each offering is structured to meet the operational requirements of commercial and industrial facilities, where downtime and safety concerns carry significant weight.

S-Line Contractors holds Contractor License #1053841 and carries Class B General, Class C10 Electrical, Class C8 Concrete, and Class C34 Pipeline classifications. The company is also DIR approved, allowing it to take on public works projects that require prevailing wage compliance. This range of licensing enables the firm to manage electrical work alongside broader construction efforts without relying on outside subcontractors.

"Commercial and industrial facilities depend on electrical systems that meet strict safety and code standards, and that is where the expanded division is focused," said Fahed EL. Bitar of S-Line Contractors. "Bringing licensed electrical services together with general contracting capabilities allows projects to move forward with fewer handoffs and clearer accountability from start to finish."

The electrical division draws on the company's record of completed work across the region. Recent projects include the Riverside ? Arlington Civil and Wet Utility project and the MRC Entertainment project, both of which combined general construction and specialized technical work. These projects reflect the type of integrated approach the firm applies to electrical contracting for larger commercial and industrial builds.

The company has completed more than 100 projects and has received more than five industry awards. Its client base spans local, state, and Commonwealth governments, along with retail, hospitality, health and aged care, industrial and manufacturing, civil works, and residential sectors throughout Southern California.

"The expansion reflects where the market is heading," Bitar added. "Facilities are adding capacity, upgrading aging panels, and modernizing lighting and safety systems, and there is a clear need for a licensed contractor that can handle all of it under one roof."

Beyond core electrical services, S-Line Contractors offers specialized work in green building and smart building integration, areas of increasing interest among commercial operators seeking to reduce energy consumption and improve system reliability. The firm's stated core values include safety, integrity, craftsmanship, collaboration, innovation, and community building.

S-Line Contractors operates as a commercial construction and electrical services company serving Southern California from its base in Riverside. The company provides new construction, building aesthetics, electrical services, and tenant improvement work for a broad range of commercial and industrial clients. Its licensing across general contracting, electrical, concrete, and pipeline classifications allows it to manage multiple phases of construction and infrastructure projects. The company continues to focus on delivering code-compliant, safety-driven work across Los Angeles County, Riverside County, Orange County, and San Bernardino County.
