

Cleaning's A Breeze Continues Building Trust as Family-Owned Cleaning Provider

August 17, 2026

Wasilla, Alaska - August 17, 2026 -

Cleaning's A Breeze continues operations as a family-owned residential cleaning company serving the Mat-Su Valley and surrounding areas. The business maintains its focus on consistency, reliability, and customer care while remaining under the leadership of founder Bre Tschilar.

Tschilar established the company after working for 16 years in the special needs community. Company materials state that the business began as a means to earn additional income while balancing family responsibilities. Core values listed by the company are work hard, help others, show compassion, and spread joy. Cleaning's A Breeze remains family-owned and operated.

Residential cleaning is a relationship-driven service industry because providers regularly enter clients' homes. Company information describes a set of practices intended to support consistency and client confidence. According to the company website, 100 percent of staff members are background-checked before entering any home. Each team member is licensed, insured, and bonded. The company holds certification as Professional Cleaners through the American House Cleaners Association and is COVID certified through the same organization. Technicians and office staff complete several hours of training that covers pH levels, acidity levels in products, and which surfaces can handle specific products.

Plant-based cleaning products are used as standard practice. Company materials state that these products are selected with the health of technicians and clients as a priority. A 100 percent satisfaction guarantee is offered, with a return visit available if concerns are reported within 24 hours.

"We've always believed cleaning is personal. Our clients trust us inside their homes during busy seasons, hard seasons, and everyday life. That trust is something we never take lightly, and it's why we focus so heavily on kindness, consistency, and genuine care," said Bre Tschilar, CEO, Cleaning's A Breeze.

Service offerings include recurring maid services available on weekly, bi-weekly, or monthly schedules, deep cleaning services, move-in and move-out cleaning, and short-term rental cleaning. The company states that schedules are developed based on household activity levels, the presence of pets, and client preferences. Service areas listed include Anchorage, Eagle River, Chugiak, Palmer, Wasilla, Big Lake, Houston, and surrounding communities.

Community programs form an ongoing part of operations. Company materials state that free cleaning services for cancer patients have been provided since 2019 through a partnership with Cleaning For A Reason, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. The organization offers free home cleaning to cancer patients in the United States and Canada so that individuals recovering from surgery, in active treatment, or in hospice can focus on health and time with loved ones. In addition, Cleaning's A Breeze donates 16 hours each month to Valley community members nominated for assistance through its Cleaning From the Heart program. Nominations may include veterans, first responders, working single parents, or others identified by community members, and the process is handled anonymously.

Family-owned businesses continue to participate in local economic activity and community support. Cleaning's A Breeze operates within this context by delivering residential cleaning services under family ownership and applying the screening, certification, training, and product standards described in its materials. The company states that it is locally owned and operated.

Tschilar continues to lead the organization as chief executive officer. The business has maintained its family-owned structure while expanding the range of residential cleaning services and sustaining its community commitments over more than a decade of operation.

Cleaning's A Breeze provides house cleaning services that include recurring schedules, deep cleaning, move-related cleaning, and support for short-term rentals. Operational standards listed by the company include background screening prior to home entry, professional certification, structured training, plant-based products, and a satisfaction guarantee.
