HAGER CITY, WI - August 14, 2026 -

Crestwood Cabinetry has helped homeowners throughout Southeast Minnesota and Western Wisconsin create additional bathroom storage through carefully planned custom bathroom cabinet installations. Drawing on more than 20 years of experience, the company designs solutions that address common space limitations while aligning with the overall style of the home.

Bathroom projects often present unique constraints related to available wall space, plumbing locations, and moisture considerations. Crestwood Cabinetry works closely with clients to develop cabinetry that incorporates efficient layouts, vertical storage options, and integrated features that expand usable capacity without requiring structural changes. These designs help reduce everyday clutter and support more organized daily routines.

The collaborative process begins with detailed discussions of client needs and preferences. Designers evaluate existing conditions and recommend wood species, finishes, door styles, and specialized components that fit both functional requirements and aesthetic goals. Clients remain involved at every stage, from initial concepts through material selection and final installation, ensuring the finished cabinets feel personal and practical.

"Bathroom storage is frequently overlooked until space becomes a daily frustration," said Jake Hinrichs, Owner. "Custom designs allow homeowners to reclaim that space in ways that standard options cannot match while still reflecting the character of the rest of the home."

Refacing services provide an alternative pathway for updating bathroom cabinetry. Existing boxes can receive new doors, drawer fronts, and hardware, delivering a refreshed appearance and improved organization with less disruption than a complete replacement. This approach suits properties where the original structure remains sound, and homeowners prefer to maintain continuity with surrounding finishes.

Residential clients have utilized these solutions in both primary and secondary bathrooms. Projects range from compact powder rooms needing discrete storage to larger master bathrooms requiring expanded vanity and linen capacity. In each case, the emphasis remains on creating cabinets that perform reliably while complementing the home's interior design.

Material selections prioritize durability suited to bathroom environments. Options include painted finishes, natural wood species, and moisture-resistant constructions that maintain appearance over time. Details such as base shoes and precise fitting contribute to clean installations that integrate seamlessly with flooring and walls.

The company's broader residential work supports similar goals of improved organization and style. Kitchen and other living-space installations follow the same client-driven process, with bathroom projects benefiting from the accumulated expertise across multiple room types. Free estimates offer transparency early in the planning phase, allowing homeowners to evaluate options against their budgets.

"Working through the details with clients ensures the final cabinets serve both immediate storage needs and longer-term enjoyment of the space," added Hinrichs. "Attention to how people actually use their bathrooms leads to practical results."

Crestwood Cabinetry continues to apply its established methods to residential projects across the region. By focusing on tailored solutions rather than standardized products, the company helps homeowners transform underutilized bathroom areas into more functional parts of the home. This approach supports both everyday convenience and the overall value of the property through thoughtful design and quality construction.

As homeowners evaluate renovation priorities, bathroom storage remains a frequent area of interest. Crestwood Cabinetry responds with designs that balance practicality, aesthetics, and budget considerations. The result is custom cabinetry that addresses real spatial challenges while maintaining the high standards of craftsmanship that define the company's residential work.
