Study Ranks Dental Veneer Clinics in Turkey for International Patients

Prismoon LLC, a digital marketing agency based in McLean, Virginia, has published a methodology-based ranking of international-facing dental veneer clinics in Turkey, naming a five-clinic shortlist drawn from more than 40 clinics under seven weighted criteria. The analysis is built from publicly available information, and its scoring model, screening stages and source-quality tiers are published in the study.

The analysis covered more than 40 clinics marketing services to international patients. Approximately 15 met the published inclusion threshold, which considered publicly verifiable review activity, veneer-specific information and licensing details available through public sources. Seven weighted criteria then produced the shortlist. The named clinics are Maltepe Dental Clinic in Istanbul, Dental Centre Turkey in Antalya and Fethiye, Sevil Smile in Antalya, Attelia Dental in Antalya, and WestDent Clinic in Izmir.

The criteria and their weightings are published in full. Reviews and patient satisfaction carry 20 percent, clinical philosophy and materials 18 percent, in-house laboratory and technology 15 percent, accreditation and licensing 15 percent, value for money 12 percent, longevity or years in service 10 percent, and international presence and aftercare 10 percent.

Published research reports high long-term survival for ceramic veneers, with outcomes varying by material, preparation design, bonding substrate and follow-up period. A systematic review and meta-analysis by Morimoto and colleagues, published in the Journal of Dental Research in 2016, reported cumulative survival of about 89 percent for laminate veneers and about 95 percent over a decade for glass-ceramic veneers. A review by Alothman and Bamasoud, published in the Open Access Macedonian Journal of Medical Sciences in 2018, reported survival near 96 percent at 10 years for minimal-preparation designs. These figures describe study populations, not expected outcomes for any patient or clinic. Prismoon's full report identifies the peer-reviewed source supporting its clinical discussion.

In-house laboratory and technology was scored as its own category at 15 percent rather than a pass or fail gate. Four of the five shortlisted clinics operate a laboratory the study was able to verify, and the fifth advertises one that could not be confirmed from primary sources. Reviews were treated as one signal among several rather than a star rating taken at face value, with cross-checks on recency, origin and named-clinician detail.

Reviews were treated as one signal among several rather than a star rating taken at face value, with cross-checks on recency, origin and named-clinician detail. The report notes that patients comparing clinics remotely may face information gaps, and that public reviews and marketing materials do not replace a consultation with a qualified dental professional and verification of credentials.

"The value here is not the ranking itself but the reasoning behind it," said Marc Oneil, marketing director at Prismoon LLC. "Every criterion and every weight is published, so a reader who weighs these factors differently can re-rank the field using the same inputs. Where a data point could not be independently verified, we flagged it in the text rather than presenting it as fact."

The study was published in July 2026 as part of the firm's digital market analysis series, alongside an accompanying methodology and study report covering research design, timeline, scoring model, verification protocol and source tiers. The firm said its full methodology, including the seven criteria and their weightings, is publicly available at <https://prismoon.com/top-5-dental-veneer-clinics-in-turkey-for-international-patients/>.
