August 26, 2026 -

Milestone Stonecare, an Anaheim-based specialist in the restoration and maintenance of natural stone surfaces, has formally introduced its full range of residential stone care services to homeowners throughout Southern California. The company, which draws on more than four decades of industry experience, now serves clients across Orange County, Los Angeles, Riverside, and San Bernardino Counties.

Established in 1998, Milestone Stonecare focuses on restoring and preserving marble, travertine, granite, limestone, and slate surfaces found in homes ranging from everyday residences to prestigious estates. The company also restores and maintains porcelain and ceramic tile, addressing a segment of the market where natural and manufactured surfaces often require distinct treatment methods.

The company's service offerings include stone cleaning, polishing, honing, repairs, lippage removal, diamond resurfacing, and sealing, along with grout and tile cleaning. Marble restoration work centers on removing etching and returning worn surfaces to their original finish through a process of cleaning, polishing, and sealing. Travertine restoration incorporates deep cleaning, hole repair, honing, and sealing to address both appearance and long-term durability. Limestone restoration removes buildup and restores a smooth, consistent finish, while granite restoration combines professional cleaning with protective sealing to maintain the material's natural character.

Miles Branson, spokesperson for Milestone Stonecare, said the expansion reflects growing regional demand for specialized surface maintenance. "Natural stone requires care that differs significantly from routine household cleaning, and many homeowners are not aware of the specific methods each material needs," Branson said. "The intent behind broadening service availability is to make professional restoration accessible to households across the region rather than limiting it to a narrow service area."

The company reports that natural stone surfaces commonly develop etching, dullness, and surface buildup over time, particularly in high-traffic areas such as kitchens, bathrooms, and entryways. These conditions often result from ordinary use and exposure to acidic substances rather than neglect, and they typically require professional equipment and technique to correct. Milestone Stonecare uses professional-grade equipment and established restoration methods to address these issues across the range of materials it services.

Branson noted that the distinction between materials plays a central role in how each project is approached. "Marble, travertine, limestone, and granite each respond differently to restoration work," he said. "A method appropriate for one surface can damage another, which is why matching technique to material remains a core part of the process."

Milestone Stonecare offers free estimates for its restoration and maintenance services and maintains ratings on Google and Yelp reflecting its work across Southern California. The company continues to serve both residential clients and larger estate properties throughout its expanded coverage area.
