

daylight AG Expands Swiss Education Software Suite for School and Course Administration

September 28, 2026

Winterthur, ZH - September 28, 2026 - daylight AG, a Winterthur-based developer of administrative software for educational institutions, has expanded its integrated suite of solutions for school administration, course management, examination processing, event coordination, and accounting. The updated offering consolidates these functions into a single modular platform designed for schools, training providers, and event organizers across Switzerland.

The company, which has operated for more than two decades, focuses on reducing the administrative workload faced by educational organizations. Its software combines people and address management, registration handling, resource disposition, accounting, and customer relationship management within one system. The company maintains its headquarters in Winterthur, and its location can be viewed at maps.app.goo.gl/FYDvnuHbdtTgjGRaA. The platform is available as an in-house installation or as a cloud service, allowing institutions to adapt the tools to their existing IT environments.

The expansion reflects growing demand among Swiss educational institutions for digital systems that streamline routine tasks and improve data management. By automating processes such as course registration, confirmation, and payment, the platform allows administrators to direct more attention toward teaching and student outcomes. The system supports multiple languages and can integrate with established financial applications, enabling institutions to maintain existing accounting workflows.

daylight AG develops its software specifically for the education and training sector, addressing the needs of schools, seminar providers, examination bodies, and organizations that coordinate events. The modular structure permits institutions to select the components most relevant to their operations, from online portal and e-shop creation to marketing and resource planning. This approach is intended to serve organizations of varying sizes, including small businesses, small and medium-sized enterprises, and larger education providers.

The company describes its platform as fully developed and hosted in Switzerland, emphasizing scalability and efficiency for institutions that manage complex administrative demands. Recent developments from daylight AG have included updates to its event management platform, enhancements to its accounting software for education, and the release of tools tailored for school administration tasks. The latest expansion continues this pattern of ongoing development across the company's product range.

Educational institutions considering the platform can find additional information through the company's profile at pressadvantage.com/organization/daylight-ag, which documents the company's recent announcements and software updates.

The expanded suite arrives as many educational organizations pursue modernization of their administrative operations. Digital process design, intelligent automation, and consolidated data systems have become increasingly relevant for institutions seeking to manage registrations, examinations, and financial records with greater consistency. daylight AG positions its platform as a means for these organizations to bring disparate administrative functions into a unified digital framework.

daylight AG is a Swiss software company based in Winterthur that specializes in administrative technology for the education sector. For more than twenty years, the company has developed integrated solutions covering school administration, course and seminar management, examination processing, event coordination, and accounting. Its multilingual platform is modular, scalable, and developed entirely in Switzerland, supporting educational institutions, training providers, and event organizers with automation and streamlined digital processes.
