August 24, 2026

MCLEAN, VA - August 24, 2026 -

A&M Roofing, a McLean-based roofing contractor serving Northern Virginia for more than twenty years, has reached a notable milestone with a perfect five-star rating across all customer reviews. The recognition reflects consistent feedback from residential and commercial property owners who have cited the company's communication, workmanship, and service throughout the region.

The firm's customer reviews highlight qualities including responsive communication, timely project completion, and dependable workmanship. Recent verified feedback from clients can be viewed through the company's public listing at amroofingva.com, where customers have documented their experiences with completed projects.

A&M Roofing has built its reputation on a full range of services, including new roof installation, roof repair, and complete roof replacement. The company also provides gutter, siding, window, and door services, along with roof inspections conducted by HAAG-certified technicians. This range of offerings has positioned the firm as a resource for property owners seeking roofing in McLean, VA services across the Northern Virginia community.

Mark Collins, a spokesperson for A&M Roofing, noted that the company's consistent ratings reflect an approach focused on materials and technical standards. "A perfect rating after two decades of work speaks to the standards the technicians hold on every project," Collins said. "The focus has always been on using quality materials and maintaining proper certifications so that each roof performs over the long term."

Complete roof replacement typically becomes necessary every fifteen to twenty years depending on the materials used, and the company reports steady demand for roofing replacement in McLean, VA projects as area homes reach that stage in their lifecycle. Alongside replacement work, the company offers routine maintenance intended to extend roof lifespan and reduce the risk of leaks and related damage.

The company recently completed a weatherproofing project in Lorton, Virginia, that emphasized the installation of a high-performance synthetic underlayment for moisture protection and durability. The project reflects an ongoing emphasis on materials selected for long-term performance in the regional climate.

"Roofing is a long-term investment, and property owners want to know the work will hold up," Collins added. "Certified inspections and careful material choices give homeowners confidence that a repair or replacement is done correctly the first time."

A&M Roofing employs HAAG-certified technicians trained to assess roof conditions, identify potential problem areas, and advise on maintenance and repair planning. The company also offers financing options through a partnership with Service Finance Company, LLC, providing property owners with additional flexibility when planning larger projects such as replacements or storm damage repairs.
