

White Oak Landscape Expands Commercial Landscaping Services for Businesses in Atlanta Region

August 28, 2026

MARIETTA, GA - August 28, 2026 -

White Oak Landscape has expanded its commercial grounds care offerings to serve a growing number of businesses in and around the Atlanta metropolitan area. The move responds to increased demand from commercial property owners seeking dependable, year-round landscape maintenance as the region continues to add new office parks, retail centers, and mixed-use developments.

The expanded program focuses on the specific needs of commercial clients, including regular lawn maintenance, seasonal plantings, irrigation management, and grounds upkeep tailored to the requirements of office campuses, shopping centers, and multi-tenant properties. By concentrating on the commercial segment, White Oak Landscape aims to help property managers maintain consistent curb appeal across their locations throughout the year.

Commercial properties in the Atlanta area face distinct seasonal challenges, from summer heat and drought conditions to winter weather that can affect turf and plantings. The company structures its services around these regional patterns, scheduling maintenance and plant selection to align with local climate conditions.

Rocky DeVotie, spokesperson for White Oak Landscape, said the expanded focus reflects changes underway across the region. "The Atlanta commercial market has grown steadily, and property managers are looking for a single partner who understands the demands of maintaining professional grounds throughout the seasons," DeVotie said. "Directing more of our resources toward commercial clients allows the team to deliver that consistency."

The White Oak Landscape business serves clients ranging from small commercial storefronts to larger campus environments. Each engagement begins with an assessment of the property and its existing landscape, followed by a maintenance plan designed to match the site conditions and the goals of the property owner or manager.

DeVotie noted that commercial landscape maintenance differs from residential work in both scale and scheduling. "A commercial site often requires coordination around business operations, foot traffic, and parking access," DeVotie said. "The approach has to account for how a property is actually used every day, not just how it looks."

Among the services included in the commercial program are turf care, mulching, pruning, seasonal color rotations, and ongoing site inspections. The company also addresses irrigation system monitoring to support water efficiency during the drier months, when many Atlanta-area properties face watering restrictions.

The expansion arrives as commercial development continues across the greater Atlanta area, bringing additional demand for grounds maintenance across newly completed and established properties alike. Property managers overseeing multiple sites often seek providers capable of handling recurring maintenance on a predictable schedule, and the company has organized its commercial operations to meet that need.

White Oak Landscape provides landscaping and grounds maintenance services to commercial clients across the Atlanta region. The business specializes in ongoing care for office, retail, and multi-tenant properties, with services tailored to local climate and seasonal conditions. Additional information about the commercial program is available on their website. The company continues to build its presence as a commercial landscaping partner for businesses throughout the region.
