

All Pro Newton Deck Builders Expands Deck Service Area to Weston

September 30, 2026

NEWTON, MA - September 30, 2026 -

All Pro Newton Deck Builders has expanded its deck design and construction service area to formally include homeowners in Weston, Massachusetts, extending a footprint that already spans Newton and more than a dozen surrounding communities across the greater Boston area. The expansion gives Weston residents direct access to the firm's full range of outdoor construction services under a dedicated local service page.

The added coverage applies to Weston, a town in Middlesex County located roughly 15 miles west of Boston. Recorded at a population of about 11,900 in the 2020 United States Census and spanning 17.3 square miles of land, Weston is a predominantly residential community bordered by Waltham and Newton to the east and Wellesley to the south. Much of the town's acreage is set aside for parks, wetlands, and forest, leaving a large share of construction activity concentrated on private residences.

For Weston homeowners, the expansion covers the same service lines the company delivers elsewhere in its territory. Those services include deck design and installation, deck repair and restoration, porch design and installation, patios and hardscapes, shade structures and pergolas, and pool deck construction. The firm handles both wood and composite deck materials, allowing project plans to be matched to a property's layout, budget, and long-term maintenance preferences.

The move reflects sustained demand for outdoor living space in the suburbs west of Boston, where established single-family properties frequently support additions such as decks, porches, and covered patios. By assigning Weston its own service designation rather than treating it as an incidental part of a broader region, the company aims to shorten response times for estimates and align project planning with local permitting requirements, which in Massachusetts generally require a building permit for new deck construction.

"The extension into Weston reflects a steady rise in requests from residents there for custom decks and outdoor structures," said John Greene, Owner of All Pro Newton Deck Builders. "A dedicated service area allows those projects to be scheduled and managed with the same attention given to longer-standing communities in the region."

Greene added that the company's approach centers on structural safety and durability rather than volume. Deck installations completed under the expanded coverage follow standard code requirements governing footings, framing, railing height, and load capacity, factors that carry particular weight in a region subject to seasonal freeze-thaw cycles and winter snow loads.

The expansion places Weston alongside neighboring communities the firm already serves, including Newton, Waltham, Wellesley, Needham, Natick, and Dover, forming a connected service corridor across Middlesex and Norfolk counties. That geographic continuity is intended to streamline scheduling for crews that already operate in adjacent towns, reducing travel time between active job sites.

Homeowners in the newly covered area can request project consultations and written estimates through the company's Weston service page. Consultations typically address deck size and placement, material selection between pressure-treated lumber and composite systems, and integration with existing features such as patios, pools, and yard grading.

The broadened coverage continues a pattern of geographic growth for the business, which has added dedicated service pages for individual towns across the Boston metropolitan area rather than operating under a single regional label. That structure keeps information on local conditions, permitting, and availability specific to each community served.

Weston residents seeking additional detail on available deck and outdoor construction services can review the offerings through All Pro Newton Deck Builders and its Weston service listing. The listing outlines the specific services scheduled for the town along with the materials and project types the company supports.
