

On Purpose Chiropractic Provides Pediatric Chiropractic Care Guide for Santa Clara County Families

August 24, 2026

LOS GATOS, CA - August 24, 2026 -

On Purpose Chiropractic has provided chiropractic care for families in Santa Clara County, CA, since opening its Los Gatos office in 2000. Led by Dr. Adam Kleinberg, the practice maintains an online resource that explains its approach to pediatric chiropractic care for infants and children and gives families an overview of what they can expect during an evaluation and visit.

The pediatric guide explains that care for infants and children uses techniques adapted to a young patient's age, size, and stage of development. The practice describes the use of light pressure during adjustments and emphasizes that pediatric care differs from techniques commonly used with adults. The guide is intended to help parents understand the services available at the practice and the factors considered during an initial consultation.

Dr. Kleinberg established On Purpose Chiropractic after developing an interest in chiropractic care from his own experience. He first received chiropractic care at age 13 after low back pain affected his mobility. He later attended Bridgeport College of Chiropractic, where he co-founded the Technique Club and participated in a mission trip to Panama. After earning his Doctor of Chiropractic degree, he practiced in seven countries across three continents before establishing the Los Gatos practice.

The pediatric information also describes how the practice approaches evaluations for younger patients. According to the guide, the assessment may consider factors such as a child's birth history and common physical activities during childhood. The material explains that techniques are adjusted for developing patients and that X-rays are used conservatively when the practice determines they are appropriate. Families can use the guide as an introduction to the practice's approach and discuss questions about care during a consultation.

"Pediatric adjustments require a different approach than care for adults," said Dr. Adam Kleinberg, chiropractor at On Purpose Chiropractic. "Depending on the child's age, light pressure is applied using techniques suited to the individual child."

Dr. Kleinberg has cared for patients of different ages for more than 20 years and has maintained regular chiropractic care for more than 30 years. His professional background also includes experience as a personal trainer and clinical work in multiple countries. In addition to his work at On Purpose Chiropractic, he published "Shine Your Love on the World: Letters to My Daughters" in 2014.

The practice places an emphasis on consultations that review patient histories and allow time for assessment and discussion. The pediatric service is part of the practice's broader family-focused model, which provides chiropractic care for patients across different stages of life. The Los Gatos office serves families in the surrounding Santa Clara County area.

"Every child has a different history and set of needs, so our approach begins with listening and understanding the individual patient," said Dr. Adam Kleinberg. "We want parents to have clear information about what we provide and an opportunity to ask questions about care."

The practice's pediatric guide presents its services as an age-appropriate approach that begins with an individual assessment. The resource also explains the importance of communicating with parents throughout the process, including discussing the child's history, answering questions, and explaining the techniques used during a visit. This focus gives families information they can review before deciding whether to schedule a consultation.

It explains that pediatric chiropractic visits may involve techniques selected for infants and children based on their age and physical development. Parents can review the information before scheduling a consultation and Speak with the practice about whether its services are appropriate for their child.

On Purpose Chiropractic continues to provide pediatric chiropractic services from its Los Gatos office after more than two decades in the community. The practice's online guide gives Santa Clara County families a clear overview of its pediatric services, consultation process, and approach to care for younger patients.

The resource also reflects Dr. Kleinberg's long-term focus on family care and his experience working with patients of different ages. The practice states that its team works within established training and office protocols while adapting visits to the individual patient. Parents are encouraged to share relevant information about their child so the provider can understand the circumstances presented during the consultation.

By providing information about pediatric techniques, evaluations, and consultations in one place, On Purpose Chiropractic gives parents a practical starting point for learning about the services available through the practice.

Families interested in pediatric chiropractic care can review the practice's online information and contact On Purpose Chiropractic in Los Gatos to discuss questions, services, and consultation options.
