August 26, 2026 -

Pine Lane Landscaping, a landscape design and outdoor services company serving the Columbus area, has expanded its service offerings to include deck construction and installation. The addition gives the company a new way to address outdoor living projects while complementing its existing landscaping and design services.

The expansion comes as homeowners continue to place greater emphasis on usable outdoor spaces. Decks can provide additional areas for dining, entertaining, relaxing, and enjoying residential landscapes, while also creating a transition between a home's interior and surrounding yard. By adding deck construction to its portfolio, Pine Lane Landscaping can incorporate these structures into broader outdoor design plans.

The company's expanded services include custom deck construction and installation designed around the characteristics and intended use of each property. Project considerations may include the available space, surrounding landscape, desired layout, and relationship between the deck and existing outdoor features. This approach allows deck projects to be considered as part of the overall landscape rather than as an isolated structure.

As a deck contractor in Columbus, OH, Pine Lane Landscaping will focus on integrating new decks with established landscaping elements and outdoor living areas. The service expansion builds on the company's experience with landscape design and its understanding of how different features work together within a residential property.

The addition also reflects the company's interest in creating outdoor spaces that balance function and visual appeal. A deck can serve as a practical extension of a home while contributing to the appearance and organization of the surrounding property. When planned alongside landscape features, a deck may help define activity areas, create gathering spaces, and provide a more cohesive connection between the home and yard.

Material selection and construction planning are also important considerations for deck projects. Pine Lane

Landscaping intends to account for the needs of each property and the preferences of each client when developing deck projects. The company's approach emphasizes durable construction, thoughtful design, and coordination with the existing landscape.

The service expansion follows a broader shift in how residential outdoor areas are being used. Rather than functioning solely as lawn or garden space, many yards now accommodate multiple activities throughout the year. Decks, patios, planting areas, walkways, and other landscape features can work together to create outdoor environments that support everyday use as well as larger gatherings.

Pine Lane Landscaping also plans to provide educational information related to deck construction and outdoor design. The company's upcoming blog, "Transforming Your Outdoor Space: Deck Trends and Construction Insights," will examine topics such as deck design considerations, maintenance, material options, and broader trends in outdoor living. The resource is intended to provide homeowners with information to consider when planning future outdoor improvements with a deck contractor in Columbus, OH.

The new deck services are positioned as a natural extension of Pine Lane Landscaping's existing work in landscape design and outdoor improvements. Combining landscaping and deck construction under one service provider can also help homeowners consider how structural and landscape elements will interact before a project begins.

With the addition of deck construction and installation, Pine Lane Landscaping is broadening its role in residential outdoor projects throughout the Columbus area. The company will continue providing landscaping and design services while incorporating decks into projects where an outdoor structure can support the property's intended use and overall design.
