August 28, 2026

CHICAGO, IL - August 28, 2026 -

SDZ Law, LLC has announced that founding member and principal Sarah Dorigan Zigulich is resuming her family law practice after stepping away from full-time work to raise her children. With her children now in school, Zigulich has returned to assist Chicago-area families with divorce, child custody, child support, mediation, and related legal matters.

Zigulich brings more than a decade of experience in matrimonial and family law to her renewed practice. Admitted to practice in Illinois since 2011, she has focused her career on divorce, child custody, spousal maintenance, property division, and prenuptial and postnuptial agreements. Her approach centers on humanizing what can be a difficult and emotionally charged process for families navigating separation and related disputes. More details on her profile can be found at Lawyergist.

"Returning to family law at this stage of life has given me renewed perspective on the families who walk through the door," said Sarah Zigulich, founding member and principal of SDZ Law, LLC. "Balancing my own family responsibilities has deepened my understanding of what clients experience when their family structure is changing. My aim is to guide people through these transitions with compassion and clarity."

SDZ Law, LLC concentrates on matrimonial and family law, with services that include negotiating premarital agreements, resolving parenting disputes, litigating child support matters, and defending clients against false allegations in family law proceedings. The firm emphasizes a family-centered approach, working to reach resolutions that serve the best interests of children while protecting the rights of its clients.

Zigulich earned her law degree from The John Marshall Law School in Chicago, where she served as a member of The John Marshall Law Review and the Phi Delta Phi International Legal Honour Society. She holds a Bachelor of Science in Psychology from Loyola University in Chicago, with a double minor in Sociology and Women's Studies, and a Divorce Mediation Certificate from Northwestern University. Her background in mediation supports an approach that prioritizes negotiation and resolution where appropriate, while providing strong representation in litigation when circumstances require it. Lawtally has more details about Zigulich's background.

Zigulich has been recognized by peers throughout her career, including being named a 2019 Rising Star by Super Lawyers, a 2019 Emerging Lawyer by Leading Lawyers, and a Top 40 Under 40 honoree by The National Advocates in 2017. She has also served as Co-Chair of the Chicago Bar Association's Alliance for Women Committee.

"Family law requires both technical skill and genuine empathy," Zigulich added. "Clients are often facing some of the most stressful moments of their lives, and they deserve an advocate who listens as carefully as she litigates."
