

Jungle Works LLC Announces Enhanced Privacy and Account Security Measures for Burning Daily Customers

September 08, 2026

HACIENDA HEIGHTS, CA - September 08, 2026 -

Jungle Works LLC, the company behind hemp and cannabis retailer Burning Daily, has introduced a series of updated privacy and account security measures designed to protect customer data across its online storefront and social media channels.

The updated protocols address how customer account information is stored, verified, and safeguarded during the shopping and checkout process. The measures also extend to the ways the company communicates with its audience across digital platforms, including its active presence on Instagram and X, where the brand shares product updates and interacts with followers.

The changes arrive as online retailers across the hemp sector face increasing attention to data protection standards. Jungle Works LLC stated that the enhancements reflect an ongoing effort to align account handling practices with evolving expectations for consumer privacy in e-commerce.

"Customer trust depends on knowing that personal and account information is handled responsibly," said

Manny Soto, spokesperson for Jungle Works LLC. "These updated measures give shoppers greater confidence that their information remains protected whether they are browsing products, completing a purchase, or engaging with the brand on social media."

The security updates focus on several areas of the customer experience. Account verification steps have been reviewed to reduce the risk of unauthorized access, while data handling procedures during checkout have been reinforced. The company has also clarified how customer interactions on external platforms connect to its retail operations, providing shoppers with clearer information about the channels through which the brand communicates.

Burning Daily maintains an established audience on social media, having joined X in September 2022 and built a following through regular product announcements and updates. The company noted that consistent communication across these channels makes account and interaction security an important part of the overall customer experience.

"The digital landscape for hemp retail continues to change, and account protection has become central to how customers evaluate where they shop," Soto said. "Reviewing and strengthening these systems is part of a broader commitment to keeping pace with responsible industry practices."

The company indicated that the updated measures apply to its full catalog of offerings, which spans product categories including flower and prerolls, vape products, edibles, and accessories. Customers accessing any part of the Burning Daily platform benefit from the reinforced account and data protection standards.

Jungle Works LLC operates Burning Daily as a retailer of hemp-derived and cannabis-related products. Based in Hacienda Heights, California, the company offers a wide selection of items including Delta 8, Delta 9, Delta 10, CBD, THC-A, and HHC products, alongside offerings from a range of brands. Its catalog includes new arrivals, flower and prerolls, vape cartridges and disposables, edibles, pet products, and accessories. Burning Daily provides free shipping on U.S. orders over fifty dollars and maintains an active presence across social media platforms, where it shares product updates and connects with its customer base.
