

Byerly RV Highlights Climate-Controlled Indoor Storage for End-of-Season RV Protection

August 28, 2026

EUREKA, MO - August 28, 2026 -

Byerly RV is drawing attention to climate-controlled indoor RV storage and end-of-season service as owners transition from peak summer travel into the off-season. The dealership's 88,000-square-foot premium valet climate-controlled indoor facility and adjacent service operations provide practical options for protecting recreational vehicles from temperature extremes and weather-related wear.

As summer camping periods conclude, many owners face decisions about how and where to store their RVs. Exposure to outdoor conditions can affect roof membranes, sealants, plumbing systems, and interior components. Byerly RV's indoor storage maintains temperatures between 50 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit year-round, reducing the risk of freeze damage that can occur in as little as 24 hours below 32 degrees and limiting heat-related stress that can elevate interior temperatures well above 100 degrees during warmer months.

Warren Patton, President and Owner of Byerly RV, noted the operational value of integrated storage and service, stating, "Our facility makes it easy for owners to handle seasonal needs while keeping their vehicles right next to our 16-bay service center."

Indoor storage includes professional pest treatment to help limit damage from rodents and insects to wiring, upholstery, and other components. Only trained staff move vehicles into and out of the locked indoor building, which sits behind a gated property. The arrangement supports security while enabling scheduled maintenance without requiring owners to transport their RVs to a separate location.

Outdoor storage remains available for owners who prefer more frequent access. The outdoor lot is fenced and gated with 24/7 coded entry, lighting, and camera coverage, along with daily monitoring by on-site personnel. Proximity to the service center allows the same convenience of moving vehicles for repairs or seasonal preparation as needed.

End-of-season service complements storage decisions. Preventative maintenance, roof inspections, sealant checks, bearing work, and appliance evaluations help identify issues before extended periods of inactivity. RVTI-trained technicians perform these tasks within the large dedicated service facility that also includes wood and metal repair capabilities.

Patton observed that owners who combine storage planning with routine service often experience fewer surprises when preparing for the following season. The integrated approach reflects the dealership's long-standing focus on supporting the full ownership cycle rather than isolated transactions.

The indoor climate-controlled facility was part of major investments completed in 2023 that expanded the Eureka headquarters with a new 16-bay retail service center, outdoor self-storage, and the indoor valet storage building. These additions followed earlier growth under Patton family ownership and positioned the dealership to handle a broader range of owner needs in one location.

Storage Manager Sami Hastey oversees operations with support from staff experienced in both service and vehicle handling. The team manages valet movements so that owners do not need to position vehicles themselves within the indoor facility.

Byerly RV has served the region since 1948, evolving from an early trailer manufacturer into a full-service dealership under three generations of Patton family ownership. The company maintains one of the larger dedicated RV service operations in the area and is Missouri's only member of the Priority RV Network, which provides access to emergency support through more than 180 independent dealerships nationwide.

As temperatures begin their seasonal shift, attention to storage conditions and pre-storage inspections forms a practical part of responsible RV ownership. Climate control, security measures, pest management, and on-site service access address common concerns related to long-term vehicle preservation.
