

First Aid Shoppe Reports That Their Emergency Preparedness Kit Has Been Sized To Fit Compact Spaces

May 31, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Today Anna Loehwing, COO of First Aid Shoppe, providers of professional grade emergency first aid and survival kits to the general public, announced that the dimensions of their ResQue1st Emergency Preparedness & First Aid Kit have been sized to fit and stow in small areas, such as in a car glove box. The kit is 7.4 inches on its longest side, and contains 200 items having to do with first aid and survival.

"It's incredible, actually," says Ms. Loehwing. "What we've been able to get into something this compact -- and it weighs less than two pounds -- what we've fitted in here for something this size is ... incredible. There are items for survival, like a poncho, a blanket, a radio, a flashlight, batteries ... and a bunch of first aid items as well. Two hundred things in all, and we get it all into a kit that can fit in your glove box."

The ResQue1st Emergency Preparedness & First Aid Kit uses the patented Easy Access Pocket System to stow and organize each individual item, making retrieval and return as easy and as fast as possible. Each item can be found quickly when needed, and is stowed as efficiently as possible, making it so the kit can maintain small overall dimensions while at the same time holding 200 different first aid and survival items.

"This is what we call a bug out bag," says Ms. Loehwing. "It's made to have everything you need to grab and go, to survive for several days if you have to when a disaster strikes. Of course it needs to be easy to carry, easy to throw in another bag, like a backpack, or in the car, in the glove box -- basically as easy to stow as possible. With these dimensions it's easier than ever."

The Emergency Preparedness Kit by First Aid Shoppe is now sized small enough to fit in most compact spaces. It contains items for survival and first aid.
