?WeRank, an online marketing company based in Virginia Beach, VA, has announced the launch of a meetup group on meetup.com. This group has the purpose of enabling better collaboration between business owners and entrepreneurs. Specifically, it focuses on their online marketing efforts. It is also an opportunity for WeRank to promote its own services, as listed on https://www.werank.net/service-areas/web-design-virginia-beach-seo/.

James Pemberton from WeRank says: "We have created a meetup group to bring together those who want to stop losing their clients to the competition. The group provides them with an opportunity to learn how important it is to build a strong online brand, and how they can rank better in the major search engines."

The meetup group, which can be found at http://www.meetup.com/local-internet-marketing-tips/, focuses specifically on local SEO efforts, particularly in the Hampton Roads, VA area. The company feels that this area is very transient, and this further demonstrates how important it is to have a solid marketing strategy in place. The goal is to bring businesses in that local market together so that they can connect and help each other grow.

WeRank has built a significant online reputation and has received countless reviews. "Working with James has been an educational experience in social media and your place in that world," says Helene P. on the company's website. "He is very specific in his planning and what your expectations may be ... a valuable and exciting experience - excellent rating."

It should be noted that WeRank wants to enable others to build a similar online reputation, thereby supporting the entire local economy as well. This, they feel, can best be achieved through proper collaboration and information sharing. The company has also highlighted the various projects that they have been involved in as of late at https://www.pressadvantage.com/organization/werank. This demonstrates the important influence the company has on the local market and economy. "We want to share what we have done and achieve, as inspiration and to help other entrepreneurs set their own goals," adds James P. "Through the various news items that we have shared, we feel that we can show others just what they can achieve themselves. More information is provided to all our meetup members."
