

Pose it up, CLT Expands Interactive Wedding Photo Booth Rentals for Charlotte Celebrations

September 08, 2026

CHARLOTTE, NC - September 08, 2026 -

Pose it up, CLT, a women-owned and LGBTQ+ friendly photo and video guest experience company based in Charlotte, North Carolina, has expanded its interactive photo booth offerings for weddings and other regional celebrations. The expansion introduces a broader range of formats designed to give couples and their guests more ways to capture and share moments throughout their events.

Pose it up, CLT wedding photo booth rental provides a variety of options within its services, including a 360 degree booth, a black and white glam booth, an enclosed lux hideaway booth, and custom package configurations. Each format is built around the idea of guest interaction, allowing attendees to participate in the celebration rather than simply pose for a single frame.

Beyond traditional booth setups, Pose it up, CLT offers experiences such as roaming photography, professional headshot stations, interactive sketching, and keychain and button bars. These additions reflect a shift in the events industry toward participatory entertainment, where guests engage directly with technology and take home tangible keepsakes from the occasion.

Kenitra Huey-Hopkins, founder of Pose it up, CLT, said the expansion responds to the way modern weddings prioritize guest engagement. "Couples planning weddings in the Charlotte area are looking for elements that bring people together and keep the energy of the celebration going," Huey-Hopkins said. "The updated lineup gives hosts more flexibility to match a booth or experience to the tone of their event, whether that is a classic black and white aesthetic or a high-motion 360 setup."

The company works with clients across weddings, corporate functions, and private gatherings. For corporate events, the photo booth setups can incorporate custom branding, allowing organizations to integrate their identity into the guest experience. For weddings, backdrops and props can be selected to align with the theme and color palette chosen by the couple.

Huey-Hopkins noted that the emphasis on curated experiences distinguishes the current offerings. "The goal is to create a seamless setup that fits naturally into an event rather than pulling focus from it," Huey-Hopkins said. "A professional team handles the logistics so hosts can stay present with their guests while the booth captures the moments as they happen."

The expanded services are available throughout the Charlotte region. Couples and event planners can select from print and digital delivery options, a range of backdrops, and both open-air and enclosed booth designs depending on venue space and guest count.

Pose it up, CLT operates as a photo and video guest experience curator serving weddings, corporate events, and social gatherings in and around Charlotte, North Carolina. The company is women-owned and identifies as LGBTQ+ friendly, and it specializes in interactive photo booth formats and guest experiences intended to encourage connection among attendees. Its portfolio includes 360 degree booths, glam and black and white configurations, roaming photography, and custom branded setups for a variety of event types.
