June 03, 2016 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Ionox has recently released new information about the sale on their Ionox graduation gifts digital tire pressure gauge. The company has announced that the gauges will be on sale past Father's Day, later than originally planned, in order to accommodate people looking to buy gifts for new graduates. They say that the sale will continue at least to the beginning of July, and potentially later. The sale prices for the highly-rated gauges are $8.95 and $9.95 for the silver and black gauge, respectively. The company recommends the gauges for young drivers as a way to teach them about auto maintenance.

The digital tire pressure gauges are made from die-cast metal, which has been molded into an ergonomic shape appropriate for users with small and large hands. Customers can choose between the silver color body, which complements many of the chrome details of a car, or the new, sleek black model.

The tire pressure gauge has been recommended and purchased as a gift by many customers on Amazon. The gauge has been on the market for less than a year, and is already receiving a majority of 5-star reviews.

[L]iked mine so much I bought several for Christmas gifts. It's pretty straightforward: not much to say. Works great. The light on the end that attaches to the valve stem is a nice touch to illuminate the valve stem. The metal body has a nice heft to it. This is a must have for all you OCD tire guys and gals. My tires are always at exactly the same pressure,? said one reviewer who purchased the gauge as a gift.

?This product its just perfect. It gives you the right pressure in different units. Plus the light its awesome, I try it at night and works great. It automatically turns off after a few seconds. I bought it for my dad as a gift and he loves it, he used to have the old ones that were not digital so it wasn't so accurate as this one. Highly recommended,? said another.

The gauge is durable due to the die-cast metal casing, which means it will last longer and perform better. But if it doesn?t, customers can contact Ionox support to receive a replacement, as the gauge comes with a 100% satisfaction guarantee.
