Ionox is offering their Ionox pencil grips for kids 12-pack on their Amazon storefront at a 39% discount off its original price. At a $24.95 MSRP, the pencil grips are being offered on Amazon at just $9.95. The grips are also available in a 6-pack, which are priced at $7.95.

Pencil grips are recommended for children learning how to write, people with fine motor issues and arthritis, and anyone who wants to improve their comfort when writing. Pencil grips eliminate the pressure marks of pencils and pens that people get from extended periods of writing. They are also suitable for art projects, as the grips can accommodate painting and drawing implements up to 7mm in diameter.

The grips are rated 4.4 stars on Amazon at press time. They have been reviewed countless times by educators and parents, who have said the grips have drastically improved their students' and children's handwriting. Ionox also recently released a number of comments from customers who remarked on the grips' suitability for children with special needs, as they make writing more accessible.

The ergonomically designed grips are ambidextrous, meaning both left- and right-handed individuals can use them without issue. They are made from FDA-food grade silicone, a non-allergenic substance that is preferable to traditional rubber or latex grip products, which can often be a source of allergies in schools.

?We hope our customers will take advantage of this discount on Amazon to try our product while they are still available at a low price. We want to help improve the lives and learning experiences of as many people as possible. We can do this by providing them with the absolute best pencil grip we can design and create, to make the cornerstone of learning a more fun and comfortable activity,? said an Ionox spokesperson.
