

Mountain Radiance Earns Multiple Honors in Regional Awards Program

September 23, 2026

ASHEVILLE, NC - September 23, 2026 -

Mountain Radiance, a physician-led medical spa, has been recognized in four categories in the 2026 Best of Asheville awards, receiving a Gold award in the Medical Spa category and Silver awards in the Day Spa, Doctor, and Women's Health categories. The practice extends its streak of being named Asheville's #1 Best Medical Spa in 2023, 2024, and 2025. Mountain Radiance was also honored in The Guide to North Carolina's 2026 Best of North Carolina as one of the Best Medical Spas in the state.

The Best of Asheville awards are an annual recognition program covering a range of local business categories, including health, beauty, and wellness services. Mountain Radiance, located at 7 Yorkshire St., Suite 101, is co-owned by physician Dr. Mark Chandler and Practice Director Lauren Chandler and has operated in Asheville for several years.

"Being recognized in four categories tells us something about how patients experience care across the board, not just in one service area," said Lauren Chandler, Practice Director at Mountain Radiance. "Medical spa, day spa, doctor, and women's health are different parts of what we do, and having all four acknowledged means people are noticing the same commitment to excellence in each of them."

The Medical Spa and Day Spa categories reflect the range of services Mountain Radiance offers, from injectables, dermal fillers, and laser treatments to facials and other aesthetician-led care. The Doctor and Women's Health recognitions point to the clinical side of the practice, where Dr. Chandler, a medical director board-certified in emergency and aesthetic medicine, is onsite for treatments and involved directly in patient care alongside a nurse injector, physician assistant, estheticians and laser technician.

"A lot of what we do sits at the intersection of medicine and aesthetics, so it means something when both sides get recognized separately," said Dr. Mark Chandler, Medical Director at Mountain Radiance. "It tells us patients see the clinical judgment behind the cosmetic result, not just the result itself."

Mountain Radiance has built its approach to treatment around patient education, with recommendations based on individual goals rather than a standard package of services. The clinical team regularly pursues continuing education through manufacturer-led programs and industry conferences, and the practice emphasizes direct physician oversight across every service line it offers.

That approach extends to how the team communicates with patients before and after treatment, with consultations designed to answer questions in a low-pressure setting rather than move quickly toward a sale. Leadership has pointed to that consultative structure, along with ongoing training, as a factor separating the practice from other providers in the region.

Chandler said the team's ties to the Asheville community, where much of the staff also lives, shape how the practice approaches patient relationships.

"Our team is out in this community outside of work, too, hiking the same trails and running the same routes our patients do," said Lauren Chandler. "That familiarity changes the conversation. Patients aren't just describing what they want to a stranger, they're talking to someone who already understands the kind of life they're trying to feel good in."

Mountain Radiance has accumulated hundreds of five-star reviews over the course of its operation in the Asheville area, a record its leadership attributes to its physician-led model and emphasis on individualized care. The practice offers Botox®-type injectables, dermal fillers, laser treatments, skincare procedures, hormone replacement therapy, and aesthetician services such as facials, all under direct physician oversight.
