

Invisalign Bradford Invisible Braces New Appointment Slots Introduced for More Teeth Straightening Patients at Taylored Dental Care

September 18, 2026

Bradford, England - September 18, 2026 -

Taylored Dental Care Bradford has introduced more consultation slots for patients considering Invisalign and Angel Aligner treatments from 16th September 2026. The expanded diary means more patients across Bradford can now access an assessment for clear aligner teeth straightening. The move widens access for patients who have been looking to discuss discreet teeth straightening options with a dental professional.

Dr Carl Taylor, Principal Dentist at Taylored Dental Care Bradford, remarked that the increase in consultation availability reflects the practice's commitment to ensuring patients can access timely orthodontic assessments. "Waiting too long for a first consultation can put people off altogether," he noted. "More slots in the diary mean patients get seen sooner and can make informed decisions about their treatment without unnecessary delay."

Clear aligners use a series of custom-made, transparent trays designed to guide teeth gradually into improved positions over time. Each aligner is worn for a prescribed period before treatment progresses to the next stage. Because the aligners are removable, they can generally be taken out for eating and routine cleaning, subject to the dentist's instructions.

The consultation appointments provide an opportunity to discuss whether Invisalign or Angel Aligners may be appropriate. An assessment may include an examination of the teeth and gums, a review of dental history, and consideration of the changes being sought. Where suitable, the dentist can explain the likely treatment process, expected commitment, estimated timescales, and the importance of wearing aligners as instructed. Any questions or concerns can be addressed before a decision is made.

The practice notes that clear aligner treatment is not based solely on appearance. The position of the teeth, bite, and general oral health must all be considered before a recommendation is made. Some patients may be suitable for Invisalign, whilst others may be better suited to Angel Aligners. In certain cases, another orthodontic approach may be more appropriate following assessment.

Alongside clear aligners, Taylored Dental Care Bradford offers fixed braces and Quick Straight Teeth, a system designed to focus on cosmetic alignment of the front teeth for cases where improvements to the visible smile are the primary concern. Nervous patients are also accommodated at the practice, with the team adapting the pace of appointments for those who feel anxious about dental visits or treatment involving repeated appointments.

A 2019 study titled "A comparison of treatment effectiveness between clear aligner and fixed appliance therapies" (DOI: 10.1186/s12903-018-0695-z), published in BMC Oral Health and conducted in Beijing, China, examined outcomes across both approaches. Researchers Ke Y, Zhu Y, and Zhu M found comparable effectiveness for certain tooth movements, though fixed appliances showed advantages for some occlusal outcomes and more complex movements. The authors acknowledged limitations in evidence quality and concluded that treatment selection should reflect each patient's individual clinical needs. The research assessed clear aligners as a treatment category rather than validating specific aligner brands.

Consultations generally begin with a discussion of the patient's concerns and the outcome being sought. The dentist examines the teeth and gums and determines whether any underlying dental issues should be addressed before orthodontic treatment is considered. The appointment also covers practical matters including the likely number of visits, treatment stages, oral hygiene during treatment, and the importance of retainers after teeth have been moved. Estimated treatment times vary according to the extent of movement required and how consistently removable aligners are worn.

The increase in consultation slots gives patients considering discreet teeth straightening a more accessible route to an assessment with a dental professional. Through consultation and clinical assessment, Taylored Dental Care Bradford aims to help suitable patients understand the available options and the practical considerations involved before beginning treatment.
