

American Cornhole Organization Completes World Championships of Cornhole Season 21

September 21, 2026

Symmes Township, Ohio - September 21, 2026 -

The American Cornhole Organization, the official governing body for the sport of cornhole since 2005, has completed the ACO World Championships of Cornhole Season 21, the culminating event of its competitive calendar and the destination for players who have earned their standing across the season's sanctioned tournaments.

The World Championships represent the peak of the ACO Majors Tour, where top-ranked competitors in singles, doubles, women's, seniors, and juniors divisions convene to determine world titleholders. Qualification is based on performance across ACO points-earning events held throughout the season, with standings maintained by the organization and updated as players compete in regional tournaments, ACO Majors, and state championships.

Worlds 21 continues the format that has defined the championships in recent years, featuring bracketed play across multiple divisions. Matches from the event join an extensive archive of tournament footage produced by the organization, including featured full matches, highlights, and live streams.

Frank Geers, Founder, also known as the Cornhole Dude, of the American Cornhole Organization, noted that the championships reflect the depth of competition that has developed within the sport. "The World Championships bring together players who have committed an entire season to earning their place," Geers said. "What sets Season 21 apart is the caliber of competition across every division, from juniors making their first appearance to seasoned professionals defending their standings."

Geers also addressed the role of the organization's broadcast presence in expanding the sport's reach. "Fans no longer have to be in the room to follow the action," he said. "Coverage of the World Championships of Cornhole and events throughout the year has made the sport accessible to a growing audience." Highlights, featured matches, and live streams from the championships and other events are available on the American Cornhole YouTube Channel | 24/7, which hosts more than a thousand videos and reaches subscribers worldwide.

The organization maintains world standings that display the top ACO players in any division at any point during the season. These rankings, tracked through the season's tournaments, form the basis for championship qualification and give competitors a clear measure of their progress. Players compete not only for titles but for placement among the sport's ranked field.

Alongside the championships, the organization continues to support new and returning competitors. Individuals holding an American Cornhole Membership | ACO gain access to sanctioned tournaments, exclusive clubs, official rules, and a worldwide community of players. Membership provides the pathway through which competitors enter the points-earning events that lead toward the ACO World Championships of Cornhole.

The American Cornhole Organization | the ACO is headquartered in Camp Dennison, Ohio, and has served as the sport's governing body since 2005. The organization establishes the official rules of cornhole followed worldwide, sanctions tournaments ranging from local regionals to the World Championships, maintains global player standings, and offers certified equipment and gear through its online shop. Through its tournament tours, membership programs, and digital broadcast network, the organization works to grow participation in the sport at every level of competition.
