

Tortilla Town Highlights Handmade Tortillas at the Center of Its Paso Robles Mexican Food Menu

September 25, 2026

PASO ROBLES, CA - September 25, 2026 -

Tortilla Town, the Mexican restaurant located at 1145 24th St B, Paso Robles, CA 93446, is placing renewed focus on its handmade tortillas as the foundation of its fresh, made-from-scratch approach to Mexican cuisine on California's Central Coast.

The restaurant centers its menu on handmade tortillas and made-from-scratch Mexican food, a combination that shapes the way each dish is assembled and served. Rather than relying on pre-packaged components, the kitchen prepares tortillas by hand to accompany a menu that includes tacos, burritos, gorditas, salads, proteins, salsas, sides, and drinks. This preparation supports a consistent standard of freshness across the offerings and ties the individual menu items together under a single culinary approach.

Handmade tortillas complement the restaurant's core menu selections in practical ways. Tacos, burritos, and gorditas each depend on the tortilla as a structural and flavor element, and preparing them by hand allows the kitchen to align texture and freshness with the fillings and salsas that accompany them. The result is a menu in which the tortilla functions as more than a wrapper, serving instead as an integral part of each plate.

For Paso Robles locals and visitors alike, the focus on freshly prepared food contributes to a straightforward dining experience built around quality ingredients. The restaurant serves families, regional workers, food enthusiasts, and travelers exploring the Central Coast, offering a menu that reflects a made-from-scratch philosophy. In addition to dine-in service, Tortilla Town provides online ordering, takeout, and catering, giving guests flexibility in how they enjoy the food.

Roger Sharp, owner of Tortilla Town, described the reasoning behind the restaurant's emphasis on handmade preparation. "Handmade tortillas are the starting point for nearly everything on the menu, and preparing them from scratch lets the kitchen maintain a consistent standard across tacos, burritos, gorditas, and more," said Roger Sharp. "The goal is to give people in Paso Robles and those passing through the Central Coast a fresh, dependable option for Mexican food."

The attention to tortillas reflects a broader commitment to made-from-scratch food that runs through the menu. As the owner Roger Sharp mentioned in this post, the tortilla serves as a common thread connecting the restaurant's varied dishes, from proteins and salsas to sides and salads. That approach is intended to provide a recognizable and reliable experience whether guests choose to dine in, order online, take food to go, or arrange catering for an event.

Tortilla Town continues to serve the Paso Robles community and Central Coast visitors from its 24th Street location. Guests are welcome to visit the restaurant in person or explore the full menu and online ordering options on the restaurant's website.
