

Sunstar Construction & Remodeling Expands Restoration and Rebuilding Support for Property Owners

September 22, 2026

ST. GEORGE, UT - September 22, 2026 -

Sunstar Construction & Remodeling has outlined an expanded focus on restoration and rebuilding services for property owners facing damage, repairs, and major disruption across Southern Utah, Southern Nevada, and Northern Arizona. The company, a licensed general contractor, reports that reconstruction projects following water damage, fire, structural failure, or other property events require careful coordination from the initial assessment through the final finish work.

Restoration and rebuilding often involve more than surface repairs. Affected walls, flooring, bathrooms, kitchens, commercial interiors, and structural components frequently need to be addressed as a connected sequence rather than isolated fixes. According to the company, clear communication and disciplined project scheduling help property owners understand each stage of the work, from tearing out compromised materials to completing final finishes.

The company noted that this service emphasis follows the Sunstar Construction & Remodeling company name update, which reflects a broader service identity spanning both remodeling and reconstruction work. The updated name is intended to signal the full scope of projects the company manages, including tenant improvements, additions, new construction, and rebuild efforts. Additional context on the change is available through the Sunstar Construction & Remodeling company name update announcement.

Structural updates and finish work present distinct challenges during a rebuild. Damaged framing or subflooring must be corrected before cabinetry, flooring, and fixtures can be installed, and commercial interiors may require phased scheduling to reduce disruption in occupied spaces. The company maintains an in-house cabinet shop to support bathroom rebuilds, an element it says helps with timelines and quality control during reconstruction.

Kevin Tatom, owner of Sunstar Construction & Remodeling, said coordination is often the deciding factor in how smoothly a rebuild proceeds.

"When a property is damaged, owners are usually dealing with disruption to their daily lives or their business operations," Tatom said. "The work of Sunstar Construction & Remodeling in St. George centers on mapping out the full path from assessment to finished repairs, so owners know what is happening at each step and can plan around it."

The company serves homeowners, tenants, property managers, brokers, and commercial owners across the region. Its restoration and rebuilding process typically begins with an assessment of the damage, followed by transparent bidding, project scheduling, and staged execution through completion. Services connected to reconstruction include flooring installation, bathroom and kitchen rebuilds, office renovations, building additions, and structural repair.

Tatom added that finish work is where a rebuild becomes livable again. "The last stage matters just as much as the framing," he said. "Getting the walls, flooring, and cabinetry right is what returns a space to normal for the people who use it every day."
