

Kelley Girl Charters Expands Deep Sea Fishing Access With Large-Capacity Vessels

October 07, 2026

Panama City, FL - October 07, 2026 -

Kelley Girl Charters, a family-owned fishing charter company based in Panama City Beach, Florida, has highlighted the expanded offshore capacity of its fleet, including the Lady Kelley and the Kelley Girl, both equipped to take larger groups offshore for extended fishing excursions.

The company operates fishing charter vessels sized to accommodate large groups seeking access to offshore waters off the Florida Gulf Coast. Experienced captains staff each charter fishing boat and guide anglers to productive fishing locations throughout the region. The larger vessel design allows families, corporate groups, and organized outings to travel together on a single trip rather than splitting across multiple smaller boats.

Kelley Girl deep sea fishing trips cover a range of offshore activities, including shark fishing, bottom fishing, and trolling for pelagic species. Trip lengths vary from shorter half-day outings to extended runs of ten or twelve hours, giving both first-time anglers and seasoned fishermen options suited to their experience and goals. The company reports that its boats exceed U.S. Coast Guard regulations and include onboard amenities such as restrooms and air conditioning.

Mark Kelley, captain and representative of Kelley Girl Charters, noted that the fleet's capacity for larger groups when deep-sea fishing addresses a practical need among visitors to the region.

"Many groups arrive in Panama City Beach wanting to fish together, and smaller boats often force them to separate," Kelley said. "The size of the Lady Kelley and the Kelley Girl lets a full group stay on one vessel, which makes the entire experience more cohesive for families and larger parties."

The charter company emphasizes the role of its captains in locating offshore fishing grounds. Knowledge of seasonal patterns and local waters shapes where each trip travels and what species anglers are likely to encounter. Bottom fishing targets reef-dwelling species, while trolling runs pursue fish found in open water farther from shore.

"The waters off Panama City Beach hold a wide variety of species through the year," Kelley said. "Matching the right trip length and style to the conditions is where experience makes the difference, and that is what the crews focus on with every group that comes aboard."

Beyond offshore excursions, Kelley Girl Charters provides shorter inshore fishing trips, guided family outings, and memorial trips during which families may spread the ashes of loved ones at sea. The combination of trip types reflects the company's position as a full-service operation serving both recreational anglers and those marking personal occasions.

A deep-sea fishing charter with Kelley Girl Charters can be arranged in several durations, allowing groups to select the format that fits their schedule and interests. The company serves visitors and residents throughout the Panama City Beach area.
