

Front Yard Originals Debuts Larger-Scale Bigfoot Displays in New Outdoor Yard Art Collection

September 24, 2026

LINDEN, MI - September 24, 2026 -

Front Yard Originals is adding larger-scale Bigfoot figures to its outdoor yard-art collection this fall, placing oversized silhouette displays among the company's current New Arrivals. The Linden, Michigan manufacturer is presenting the Gigantic Bigfoot, standing 7 feet 7 inches tall, and the All-Weather Female Bigfoot as part of a dedicated Bigfoot line that now includes taller outdoor figures alongside the company's seasonal and year-round displays.

The timing coincides with the period when households begin arranging fall outdoor presentations. As yards shift from summer furnishings to later-year displays, larger silhouettes take on a different role than small seasonal accents. Front Yard Originals already produces outdoor nativity scenes, Christmas figures, Halloween pieces, and wildlife silhouettes. The current Bigfoot additions put height and outline at the center of that outdoor mix rather than treating the figures as minor novelty items.

The Gigantic Bigfoot stands 7 feet 7 inches tall. At that height, a silhouette is no longer a ground-level ornament. It occupies the same visual field as a standing person and, in many yards, rises above shrubs, railings, and porch furniture. The figure is produced as a cut-out profile, so the shape itself carries the subject.

Light, shadow, trees, and siding become the background against which the outline is read. That is the practical distinction of a large Bigfoot yard display: scale changes where the piece sits in the landscape and how it is seen from the street and the house.

The All-Weather Female Bigfoot appears in the same New Arrivals group. Company product information identifies the figure as 6 feet 6 inches tall and manufactured in the United States from extra-thick plastic intended for outdoor use. Together, the two figures give the collection a pair of larger adult silhouettes. Other Bigfoot pieces already exist at different heights, including an over-7-foot figure and a smaller child add-on. The development now in view is the current presentation of the taller pair and the way those sizes expand the range of Bigfoot yard art available for outdoor placement.

Larger silhouettes change the visual job of outdoor yard decorations. Small displays work at close range, near a walkway or stoop. A 7-foot-7-inch profile works at property scale. It can stand in an open lawn, against a fence line, or beside a tree and still be recognized as a figure. Company descriptions present Bigfoot pieces as larger-than-life outdoor displays and as conversation-oriented yard art. That framing fits the subject without tying the figures to a single calendar date. An outdoor Bigfoot display may appear during the fall decorating season, remain after Halloween, or stand on its own outside any holiday theme.

Bigfoot outdoor decorations occupy a distinct category in the Front Yard Originals catalog. The company groups outdoor nativity displays, Christmas yard decorations, reindeer and sleighs, yard silhouettes, Halloween displays, animal displays, Easter displays, and winter displays as separate lines. Bigfoot sits beside those collections rather than inside the Halloween group. That structure matters in September, when Halloween merchandise becomes more visible in the wider decorating market. The company's organization treats the figures as a specialty outdoor subject, not as limited-run holiday props.

Material and assembly details support outdoor use of the larger figures. Front Yard Originals manufactures its displays in the United States from thick, high-quality PVC board described as waterproof, fade-resistant, and suited to rain, snow, wind, and sun. Related Bigfoot information refers to extra-thick waterproof plastic that does not delaminate in the manner of painted plywood. Many of the company's displays use a slide-together design, included hardware, and minimal tools. Some pieces are staked in the yard; others may be secured against a tree, fence, or wall. Lighting is left to the property owner. Exact mounting methods vary by model.

The New Arrivals grouping also includes life-size nativity pieces and a wall-mounted patriotic eagle, indicating a broader refresh of listed displays rather than a single-subject campaign. The Bigfoot figures remain the subject of this release because their scale and category are the development now in public view.

"Larger silhouettes change the job of a yard piece," said Shane Easler, Partner at Front Yard Originals. "At 7 feet 7 inches, a Bigfoot yard display is read as part of the property rather than as a small decoration set at ground level. Height and outline do the work."

Easler said the figures follow the same manufacturing approach used across the company's outdoor line. "These displays are made in the United States from thick all-weather PVC board, the same material used for nativity figures and other outdoor pieces. Bigfoot is a separate collection, and the current New Arrivals simply put the larger figures forward."
