

Endless Energy Names Tyler Ransom General Manager to Support Continued Growth

October 19, 2026

Marlborough, Massachusetts - October 19, 2026 -

Endless Energy, a family-owned provider of HVAC, plumbing, and electrical services with more than 40 years of operation in Massachusetts, has appointed a new operations leader to guide the next phase of its development. Endless Energy announces new general manager Tyler Ransom, who will work alongside CEO Matt Kidd to help scale the company's operations across New England.

Ransom brings experience spanning HVAC, plumbing, and electrical service businesses, having progressed from technician to trainer to business owner and then into executive leadership. His operational approach centers on scalable growth, KPI-driven accountability, and the development of high-performing leaders. Throughout his career, he has focused on aligning company culture with day-to-day execution while maintaining customer experience and service quality during periods of expansion.

In prior leadership roles, Ransom contributed to measurable operational results, including 54.8 percent year-over-year revenue growth and 805 percent membership growth at previous organizations. His earlier work also produced a 40 percent increase in customer satisfaction sentiment and a 29.9 percent increase in customer reviews. These accomplishments reflect his background in building service organizations prior to joining Endless Energy.

The appointment supports Endless Energy as the company continues to broaden its service offerings, which include heating, cooling, HVAC, plumbing, electrical work, home energy assessments, and financing options. The company also provides Mass Save® Home Energy Assessments and does not rely on subcontractors, keeping its skilled team responsible for projects from start to finish.

"Tyler has built scalable, high-performing service organizations throughout his career, and that operational experience makes him a strong fit for this role," said Matt Kidd, CEO of Endless Energy. "His people-first, KPI-driven approach aligns with the way this company has always treated both employees and customers. Adding his leadership will help the organization grow while protecting the service quality that families and businesses have come to expect."

Tyler Ransom pointed to the company's reputation and team culture as central to his decision to join. "Joining Endless Energy is an opportunity to apply years of operations and team-development experience within an organization that genuinely values its people and its customers," said Ransom. "The focus going forward is on supporting the existing team, strengthening accountability, and helping the company grow in a sustainable way."

The company's leadership philosophy traces back to CEO Matt Kidd's personal history. Endless Energy was shaped by the example of a family handyman who identified needs and delivered real solutions, an approach the company extends to its training and customer relationships today. That foundation continues to inform how the organization develops its workforce and serves its community.

Endless Energy is a family-owned and operated business based in Massachusetts with over 40 years of experience in HVAC, plumbing, and electrical services. The company delivers energy-efficient solutions and offers heating, cooling, ductwork, mini split installation, indoor air quality services, water heater installation, EV charging station installation, and commercial solar services. Endless Energy provides same-day service for urgent needs, manufacturer warranties, and limited service warranties for up to ten years, with a skilled in-house team handling each project.
