

Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning Positions Itself as Single-Provider Home Comfort Resource for Bucks and Montgomery County

September 29, 2026

Upper Southampton Township, Pennsylvania - September 29, 2026 -

Homeowners across Bucks and Montgomery County navigate a wide mix of housing stock, from historic rowhomes with aging pipes and oil heat to newer suburban construction, and many find themselves coordinating separate contractors for plumbing, heating, and cooling rather than relying on one accountable company. Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning, an established provider serving the region since 2001, is highlighting the full breadth of its plumbing, heating, and air conditioning services as a single-provider alternative for households managing these overlapping systems.

The company covers a service area that includes Doylestown, Newtown, New Hope, Chalfont, and Perkasie, extending across communities such as Quakertown, Yardley, Warminster, and Southampton. Its work reaches homes in Feasterville, Richlandtown, Warrington, Ardmore, Blue Bell, Horsham, King of Prussia, and Willow Grove.

On the plumbing side, Central Plumbing offers drain cleaning, sewer line service, leak detection, and water heater installation and repair for both tank and tankless units. The company also handles gas line installation and repair as well as water treatment system installation.

Heating services span furnace repair and installation, boiler repair and maintenance across gas, oil, and propane systems, heat pump repair and installation, radiant floor heating, and ductless mini-split systems. The company also performs oil-to-gas furnace conversions, a service relevant to older properties throughout the region. Cooling services include air conditioning repair, installation, and preventive tune-ups intended to identify potential problems before systems fail.

The company operates a 24/7 emergency response program with a stated response time under 60 minutes throughout its service area. It provides upfront pricing with no hidden fees, and its technicians are NATE-certified, licensed, and insured.

"Households in this area often deal with three separate systems that all need attention at different times of the year, and juggling multiple contractors can create gaps in accountability," said a spokesperson for Central Plumbing, Heating & Air Conditioning. "Bringing plumbing, heating, and cooling under one provider gives homeowners a single point of contact from the first service call through completion."

The spokesperson noted that the region's varied housing stock shapes much of the company's daily work. "A century-old home in New Hope presents very different challenges than newer construction in Warrington or Blue Bell," the spokesperson said. "Familiarity with both ends of that spectrum is part of what an established local company brings to the work."

Central Plumbing & Air Conditioning positions its longevity in the market as a factor for households seeking continuity across service visits. Operating in Bucks and Montgomery County for more than two decades, the company frames its combined plumbing and Heating & Air Conditioning offerings as a practical option for property owners who prefer one accountable provider rather than separate specialists for each system.
