Watertown, WI coffee business R'stoyours has launched its reusable k cups as a way of helping to reduce waste and protect the planet, while also enabling their customers to save money. The said k cups are currently exclusively available on Amazon and GoldenSourceDirect.com.

Rebecca Kauffeld, founder of R'stoyours, says: "Our Mission - to help you to save money & protect earth by reducing waste through reusable k cups. Our passion: coffee and helping others at the same time."

Rebecca is a stay at home mother who experienced a breech birth. She was able to deliver naturally thanks to God, the help of a doula, her husband and midwives, which is an event that inspired her to give back to the community. She achieves this in a number of different ways, including by being a doula herself and a midwifery apprentice. Rebecca has a passion for coffee and for natural births, and she aims to use the success of her company to give back to the community as a whole.

R'stoyours offers a number of coffee accessories, such as the k cups, and also the French press. The purpose of the company is to enable others to enjoy coffee, while also giving back to the customers and the community. By offering k cups that could be used over and over again instead of the usual disposable k-cups, R'stoyours helps people to save money, while at the same time help protect the planet through the reduction of wastes. More details about Rebecca's passion and commitment to this can be found on Facebook.

The k cups are offered by Golden Source Direct, which is the sole distributor of the R'stoyours coffee brand. R'stoyours is currently Golden Source Direct's only brand. Together, they aim to create a real, meaningful difference to the world. Those who have tried their products have been incredibly pleased with their purchases. People have mentioned that they appreciate the fact that the cups are reusable, and very easy to clean. Noting that they do indeed save money, while at the same time helping people feel good because they protect the planet, customers have been regularly purchasing more cups.

More details about R'stoyours and the Golden Source coffee cups, as well as their mission and values, are available on the company's About Us page.
