R'stoyours, a woman owned company in Watertown, Wisconsin, has emphasized that the company's goal is for people to enjoy coffee in a healthy way. Rebecca Kauffeld decided to found R'stoyours after being able to give birth to a breech baby in a natural way. This prompted her to combine her interests in coffee and birthing. With the help of her husband Seth, she launched R'stoyours, and later Golden Source Direct, both operating out of Watertown, WI. The goal of both companies is to enable people to enjoy coffee in a healthy, natural way, and to do this in such a way that serves the community and the planet as a whole. Rebecca makes her contribution to the community by volunteering as a doula.

Rebecca herself says: "My father, John, introduced me to the love of coffee. My parents John and Linda gave me an entrepreneurial spirit. They both owned their own businesses."

R'stoyours was started by Rebecca while she was a stay at home mom. At first, she sold exclusively out of her home, but she has now expanded and launched her own website, as well as her Facebook page. For Rebecca, the goal is to offer quality over quantity. Inspired by her parents' entrepreneurial spirit, her love of coffee, and her birthing experience, she aimed to create something that combined those three passions.

As can be seen on Golden Source Direct's About page, the two companies are currently each other's exclusive clients. This is because they both stand for the same values, having been started by husband and wife. Together, they want to ensure people are able to enjoy coffee in a healthy and affordable way. At the same time, they aim to ensure any environmental impact is minimized as much as possible.

The proceeds that R'stoyours makes help to support Rebecca in her important community work. She volunteers as a doula, helping expectant mothers to enjoy a birth that is as safe and natural as possible. Significant research has demonstrated that women who are supported by a doula during their pregnancy have greater physical and mental health outcomes, as do their babies.

What has started as a small woman owned company in Wisconsin, operating out of a single room, has now grown into a large business that has a tremendous impact on the world as a whole. Selling mainly through Amazon and eBay, the company is growing rapidly with people hailing their passion for their products.
