

Fohn Funeral Home Highlights Pre-Arrangement Planning Services for Southwest Missouri Families

November 12, 2026

CASSVILLE, MO - November 12, 2026 -
Fohn Funeral Home, owned and operated by Todd and Bethany McCoy and serving families in Cassville and South Barry County since 1990, is drawing attention to its pre-arrangement planning services that allow individuals to document their funeral wishes in advance. The service requires no health questionnaire, physical exam, or waiting period, and the completed plan is kept on file at the funeral home's office.

With more than 33 years of experience in the region, the funeral home reports that a growing number of families are choosing to plan ahead rather than leave arrangements to loved ones during a time of grief. Pre-planning allows individuals to specify whether they prefer a traditional funeral or cremation, a formal or relaxed memorial service, and burial or other arrangements. Documenting these decisions ahead of time relieves family members of having to make difficult choices during an emotional period.

Fohn Funeral Home Pre-Arrangement Planning also gives individuals the option to pre-fund their plans. Payments are placed into a state-approved trust account, and once a pre-funded plan is paid in full, the price is guaranteed and will not increase. This structure protects families from future inflation in service costs, ensuring that arrangements made today will not carry additional expense later.

"Making decisions ahead of time allows a person to reflect carefully on their own wishes without the pressure of grief or a deadline," said Bethany McCoy of Fohn Funeral Home. "Families tell us that having a plan already on file brings a sense of relief, because the most important decisions have already been discussed and documented."

The absence of medical requirements means that anyone can begin the process regardless of age or health status. The plan simply records an individual's preferences and, when desired, secures pricing through the trust arrangement. McCoy noted that this approach is intended to remove common barriers that discourage people from planning in advance.

"Our goal is to make the process straightforward and accessible," McCoy added. "There is no exam to pass and no waiting period before a plan takes effect. A person documents what they want, and that information stays with us until it is needed."

In addition to pre-planning, Fohn Funeral Home offers traditional funeral services, memorial services, graveside ceremonies, and cremation options. The funeral home also provides grief support resources and specialized assistance for military veterans, including arrangement of military honors and guidance on veterans' burial benefits. McQueen Funeral Home serves the neighboring Wheaton community under the same ownership.

Fohn Funeral Home has served the Cassville area for more than three decades, combining established funeral home services with resources designed to support families through loss and remembrance. The funeral home has implemented enhanced safety protocols in response to evolving community health considerations and continues to adapt its services to remain accessible to families throughout Southwest Missouri.
