

J&D Tree Service Expands Tree Removal Capabilities for Hazardous and Large-Scale Jobs

November 17, 2026

MONETT, MO - November 17, 2026 -
J&D Tree Service, a locally owned tree care company serving Southwest Missouri, has formally expanded its tree removal operations to address a growing need for the safe removal of hazardous, dead, diseased, and unwanted trees, including large hardwoods positioned near structures, power lines, and utilities. The expanded focus comes as property owners across the region face increasing concerns about aging and storm-damaged trees on residential and commercial sites.

Founded by John Marmon more than 20 years ago, the company has completed over 500 projects while maintaining a claims-free safety record. The expanded service reflects the company's effort to meet demand for removals that require careful planning and specialized equipment, particularly for trees that pose risks to buildings and infrastructure.

Under the expanded approach, every job begins with an on-site inspection to determine the safest method of removal. Crews then complete the work using professional-grade equipment, full insurance protection, and thorough cleanup once the tree has been taken down. The process is designed to minimize impact on surrounding property while addressing trees of any size.

"Every removal starts with a careful look at the site before any work begins," said John Marmon, owner of J&D Tree Service. "When a tree sits near a house, a power line, or a utility connection, the plan has to account for those risks from the start. That inspection step is what allows the crew to do the job safely and leave the property in good condition when the work is finished."

The company provides free on-site estimates for all tree removal jobs. As part of the expanded service, representatives can also help homeowners determine whether a permit is required before work begins. Most private residential removals do not require a permit, though trees located near utility lines, within a city right-of-way, or on commercial property may need prior approval.

Marmon noted that the permit guidance is intended to reduce confusion for property owners who are uncertain about local requirements. "A lot of homeowners are not sure whether they need approval to take down a tree," he said. "Helping them sort that out ahead of time keeps the project on track and avoids complications later."

The J&D Tree Service Tree Removal service handles trees of any size and complements the company's broader range of tree care work, which includes professional pruning and trimming, stump grinding, and 24/7 emergency response for downed trees and storm-related hazards. The company serves homeowners and property managers across Barry, Lawrence, Stone, and surrounding counties, including Monett, Cassville, Aurora, and Mount Vernon.

The timing of the expanded service aligns with periods of increased severe weather activity in Southwest Missouri, when aging and damaged trees can become safety concerns for area properties.

J&D Tree Service is a locally owned and operated tree care company based in Monett, Missouri. Licensed and insured, the company has more than 20 years of industry experience and has completed over 500 jobs while maintaining a claims-free record. Services include tree removal, tree trimming, stump grinding, and emergency tree care throughout Southwest Missouri.
