Divine Desert Destination Completes Living Room Upgrade Ahead of Winter Season

October 08, 2026

BORREGO SPRINGS, CA - October 08, 2026 -
Divine Desert Destination has completed a refresh of the living room at its De Anza Golf and Country Club vacation rental, timing the improvements to coincide with the upcoming Pint 4 the Park event and the busy winter travel season in the Anza Borrego area.

The update centers on the main living space of the 2,080-square-foot desert retreat, a room designed with 10-foot ceilings and east and west facing walls of glass that frame 180-degree mountain, pool, and golf course views. The refreshed living area features updated furnishings and artwork intended to complement the property's light and airy layout while accommodating the increased number of guests expected during the cooler months.

The winter season traditionally draws visitors to the region for hiking, off-roading, and outdoor events, and the Pint 4 the Park gathering is anticipated to bring additional travelers to the area. The company undertook the living room improvements in preparation for this period of elevated demand.

"The living room is where guests gather after a day of hiking or exploring the desert, so updating that space was a natural step as the winter season approaches," said Toni Locke of Divine Desert Destination. "The goal was to keep the comfortable, open feeling while making sure the space is ready for the guests who visit during the busiest months of the year."

The property includes two bedrooms, a well-stocked kitchen, and a private pool and spa with a hot tub. Situated within the De Anza golf community, the retreat was conceived as a getaway that reflects the owners' long history with the Anza Borrego region.

"Greg and I have been coming to Anza Borrego for years to camp, hike, and off-road, and this property grew out of that connection to the area," Locke added. "Attention to detail has always guided the way the retreat is maintained, and the living room refresh continues that approach heading into the winter season."

Divine Desert Destination offers direct booking for the rental, allowing guests to communicate directly with the owners. The company also provides a virtual tour and an availability check through its website, along with a platform for guests to share reviews of their stay.

The living room update arrives as interest in desert getaways tends to rise during the fall and winter months, when temperatures make outdoor recreation more accessible. By completing the work ahead of the Pint 4 the Park event, the company aims to have the space ready for the season's visitors.

Divine Desert Destination is a vacation rental company offering a desert retreat with a private pool and spa at the De Anza Golf and Country Club. Owned by Toni and Greg, who purchased the property as a getaway and eventual retirement home, the company focuses on direct booking and personal attention to detail. The business is licensed and insured and also offers travel insurance. The owners draw on many years of experience exploring the Anza Borrego area through camping, hiking, and off-road adventures.
