

Vancouver Chauffeured Transportation Company Grows Fleet to Seven Vehicle Types Over 22 Years of Service

KJ Limousine Services expanded from a single limousine in 2004 to a fleet covering sedans, SUVs, executive vans, minibuses, and wheelchair accessible vehicles, serving the Lower Mainland.

A Vancouver-based chauffeured transportation provider has expanded its fleet over 22 years from a single vehicle to seven vehicle types, reflecting growth from a one-limousine operation into a full-service ground transportation business serving the Lower Mainland. KJ Limousine Services, founded in 2004, now operates luxury sedans for two passengers, SUVs for five, executive vans accommodating six to 14 passengers, wheelchair accessible sedans and vans, and minibuses with capacity for 22. The company also provides five child car seat configurations for young passengers, including infant carriers, rear-facing seats, forward-facing toddler seats, high-back boosters, and Ozzi boosters, with installation handled by staff trained through the Child Passenger Safety Technician program. This range of vehicle types and passenger accommodations allows the company to serve individual travelers, families, groups, and corporate clients within a single fleet.

The company's fleet expansion reflects a widening range of client requirements that have developed over more than two decades of serving the Vancouver region. Airport transfers to Vancouver International Airport are the most frequently requested service, followed by Whistler mountain resort trips for winter sports travelers, wedding party transportation for ceremonies and receptions across Metro Vancouver, Vancouver city tours for visitors, cruise ship terminal transfers to Canada Place, and cross-border transfers to Seattle. The fleet's diversity means individual business travelers, families with children, large groups, corporate events, and passengers with mobility needs can all be served from the same operator rather than requiring different providers.

The addition of wheelchair accessible vehicles in recent years broadened the company's service range beyond traditional executive transport. The company now operates a wheelchair accessible sedan alongside a wheelchair accessible van, both equipped for passengers who use wheelchairs or have limited mobility. This vehicle category has become an increasingly requested service type, with the company fielding regular bookings from passengers who need accessible ground transportation for medical appointments, airport connections, and community travel. The entire fleet is maintained in immaculate condition, with vehicles replaced on a cycle of under seven years to ensure reliability.

"Over the years our clients have asked for more options, and the fleet grew naturally from there," said a company representative at KJ Limousine Services. "Starting with one vehicle meant we could only serve one type of trip at a time. As we added sedans, then SUVs, then vans, and eventually accessible vehicles, we found ourselves able to handle airport transfers, Whistler trips, weddings, and corporate events simultaneously. That flexibility has been central to how the business developed since we started in 2004, and the accessible vehicle addition was a direct response to what passengers were asking for."

The company operates 24 hours a day, seven days a week, serving Vancouver, West Vancouver, North Vancouver, Burnaby, Richmond, Delta, Surrey, and surrounding communities across the Lower Mainland. Online booking is available for all service types through the company's website, and advance reservations are recommended during peak travel periods such as the winter Whistler season and the summer wedding calendar. Drivers are experienced professionals with clean motor vehicle records who complete a company chauffeur training program before serving clients. The company's philosophy of providing service that is safe, timely, and courteous has driven the fleet expansion over two decades, and the same approach continues to guide its operations across the region today.
