

Integrative Health Miami's Dr. Yeisel Barquin Completes Endocrine Balance and BHRT Symposium at George Washington University

October 09, 2026

MIAMI, FL - October 09, 2026 -

Miami, FL ? Dr. Yeisel Barquin, a board-certified internal medicine physician and the founder of Integrative Health Miami, has completed the Endocrine Balance and BHRT Symposium offered through The George Washington University School of Medicine and Health Sciences. Dr. Barquin completed the program on September 27, 2026, and earned 24.00 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit? for her participation. The practice also confirmed that Dr. Barquin is a member of The Menopause Society, the professional organization formerly known as The North American Menopause Society.

The symposium is a continuing medical education program for physicians and other clinicians that covers topics related to the endocrine system and bioidentical hormone replacement therapy. AMA PRA Category 1 Credit? is the continuing medical education credit designation of the American Medical Association and is awarded for activities offered by accredited continuing education providers. Physicians in Florida and throughout the United States are required to complete continuing medical education on a regular basis to maintain their licenses, and many choose additional coursework in subject areas connected to the patients they treat.

The certificate issued for the symposium documents Dr. Barquin's completion of the program and the continuing medical education credit she earned. The symposium is an educational activity, and its completion does not represent a board certification or a specialty certification in hormone therapy. Dr. Barquin's board certification remains in internal medicine.

The Menopause Society is a nonprofit, multidisciplinary organization focused on the health of women during midlife and the years that follow. The organization was founded in 1989 as The North American Menopause Society and adopted its current name in 2023. Its members include physicians, nurse practitioners, pharmacists, researchers, and other professionals in healthcare and related fields. The organization publishes the peer-reviewed journal Menopause and develops educational resources and clinical guidance for practitioners who care for women in this stage of life.

The continuing education and professional membership relate to clinical areas that Integrative Health Miami already addresses. The practice provides primary care and internal medicine services, along with women's wellness, men's wellness, functional medicine, mental and behavioral health, obesity and weight-loss support, and executive medicine services. Its women's wellness services include care for adult women at different stages of life, an area in which endocrine and menopause-related questions are part of routine medical discussions.

Integrative Health Miami is located at 2655 S Le Jeune Rd, Suite 902, Miami, FL 33134. It serves adult patients from communities across Miami-Dade and Broward counties, including Brickell, Coral Gables, Coconut Grove, Key Biscayne, Pinecrest, South Miami, Miami Beach, Aventura, and Fort Lauderdale.
