

Can't Be Beat Fence Co LLC Marks 43 Years as a Gulf Coast Fence Company

October 22, 2026

Crane Creek, Mississippi - October 22, 2026 -
Can't Be Beat Fence Co LLC highlights more than four decades of service across the Mississippi Gulf Coast, having installed over 20,000 fences for homeowners, businesses, and government facilities since 1982. The company continues to serve communities throughout the region, including Ocean Springs, Gulfport, Biloxi, Pass Christian, and Pascagoula.

Founded in 1982, the firm has remained an active fixture in South Mississippi while many competitors have come and gone. As a local fence company, Can't Be Beat Fence has grown into one of the Southeast's larger fencing contractors, completing projects that range from single-family residential fences to large-scale installations on military and government complexes.

The company's residential work includes a range of fencing types to fit different property needs, including aluminum, chain link, vinyl, and wood privacy fences. On the commercial side, the firm has worked as a subcontractor on more than a thousand commercial and industrial projects. Its government fencing division has installed fences at dozens of military and government complexes across the Southeastern United States, using background-cleared employees for secure-facility work.

Owner Meredith Anderson stated the company's longevity in the fencing industry reflects a consistent approach to workmanship and customer guidance.

"Staying in business for 43 years comes down to how a project is handled from the first estimate to the final post," Anderson said. "Each customer receives guidance through selection, estimation, scheduling, and site preparation, and the work is carried out by full-time installers who understand the materials and the local conditions."

The company reports that its average installer has more than ten years of experience, and it maintains an award-winning safety program. The company offers estimates at no cost and can arrange them by phone or through an on-site visit, with no money required upfront.

Fencing demand along the Gulf Coast reflects the area's mix of coastal residential neighborhoods, commercial development, and federal installations. Different settings call for different materials, and the company's catalog includes ornamental aluminum, vinyl-coated chain link, wood, and vinyl options to suit varying budgets, security needs, and aesthetic preferences.

Anderson added that the company's footprint extends well beyond residential neighborhoods.

"Commercial and governmental projects require a different level of planning and clearance, and that experience carries over into every residential job as well," Anderson said. "Property owners who want to learn about options can contact our team of experts today to schedule an estimate."

The company serves residential customers across Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, Pearl River, Stone, and George counties, including the cities of Gulfport, Biloxi, Ocean Springs, Pass Christian, Pascagoula, Gautier, Moss Point, Waveland, and Poplarville. Commercial and industrial service extends throughout Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana, and the wider Southeast for federal and Department of Defense installations.
