

daylight AG Expands School Management System Offerings for Swiss Educational Institutions

October 26, 2026

Winterthur, ZH - October 26, 2026 -

daylight AG, a Swiss software company based in Winterthur, has expanded its integrated software solutions designed to streamline administrative operations for schools and educational organizations across Switzerland. The company continues to develop comprehensive digital tools that unify school administration, course management, examination processing, event coordination, and accounting into a single modular platform.

With more than twenty years of operation, daylight AG specializes in educational technology that addresses the growing administrative demands facing schools, small and medium-sized enterprises, and education providers. The company's platform combines multiple functions into one system that is modular, scalable, and fully developed in Switzerland. The expansion reflects the increasing need among educational institutions to modernize operations and reduce the administrative burden placed on staff.

The software covers a wide range of functions, including people and address management, the organization of courses, seminars, and events, registration handling, resource planning, accounting, and marketing. Educational organizations can also create online portals or e-shops that automate registration, confirmation, and payment processes. The platform integrates with established financial applications and can be installed locally or used as a cloud service, adapting to the existing systems and processes of each institution.

daylight AG has structured its solutions to support the daily realities of educational management. By consolidating administrative tasks into one coordinated system, the company aims to help institutions improve data management and redirect resources toward student success and learning outcomes. The software is multilingual, reflecting the diverse linguistic environment of Switzerland and the varied needs of the organizations it serves.

The company's approach centers on intelligent automation, digital marketing capabilities, and smart process design. These elements work together to reduce manual effort, minimize errors, and allow administrators to manage complex educational programs with greater consistency. Additional information about the company is available at pressadvantage.com/organization/daylight-ag.

Recent developments from the company include the rollout of software tailored specifically for school administration tasks, updates to its event management platform, enhancements to its course management solutions, and improvements to its accounting software for education. These updates form part of an ongoing effort to keep the platform aligned with the evolving operational requirements of schools and training providers.

The company operates from its headquarters at Bahnhofplatz 12 in Winterthur, where it develops and supports its software for clients throughout the country. The location can be viewed at maps.app.goo.gl/FYDvnuHbdtTgjGRaA.

daylight AG is a Swiss software company specializing in school, course, examination, event, and accounting management solutions for educational institutions and event organizers. Founded more than two decades ago, the company develops multilingual, modular software designed to simplify and automate the administrative processes involved in organizing, managing, and marketing educational and training programs. Based in Winterthur, daylight AG continues to support educational organizations across Switzerland with digital tools built to address the sector's administrative challenges.

daylight AG serves organizations ranging from established educational institutions to smaller training providers. Each deployment is adapted to the specific workflows and requirements of the client, reflecting the company's focus on customized solutions rather than one-size-fits-all products.
