Valora Storage Expands Drive-Up Storage Units in Lubbock Texas Amid Rising Demand

October 23, 2026

LUBBOCK, TX - October 23, 2026 -
Valora Storage has expanded its drive-up self-storage offerings across its two Lubbock locations in response to a steady increase in demand for flexible space from residents and businesses throughout the region.

The expansion addresses a growing need among households managing relocations, downsizing, and seasonal transitions, as well as businesses seeking adaptable options for inventory, equipment, and records. Valora Storage reports that interest in month-to-month arrangements has climbed as individuals and organizations look for solutions that do not require long-term commitments.

The expanded selection includes clean, secure, drive-up self-storage units available in a range of sizes to accommodate everything from household goods to commercial inventory. Each facility features 24-hour security, gated entry with personalized keypad codes, daily on-site checks, and extended daily access hours. Climate-controlled record storage also remains available for businesses that must preserve important documents in a secure environment.

"The need for flexible space in this area has grown considerably over the past year, and the expansion reflects a direct response to what the community has been asking for," said Elle Valora of Valora Storage. "Many people are navigating moves, home projects, or business changes that call for storage without the burden of a long-term lease, and the goal is to meet those needs with convenient, secure options."

The two Lubbock facilities are positioned for easy access from major roads across the area. In addition to interior and drive-up units, Valora Storage offers outdoor parking spaces for vehicles, recreational vehicles, boats, and trailers. The company notes that online booking and payment options let tenants manage their accounts and reserve space with minimal effort, and customers can rent now through the company's online portal.

Valora Storage serves a broad mix of clients, from families storing seasonal belongings to companies managing surplus inventory. The business storage options are designed to help organizations store equipment and supplies in a secure, accessible setting, while record storage supports firms with climate-sensitive document retention requirements.

"Security and accessibility remain central to how the facilities operate," Valora added. "Video surveillance, gated access, and daily checks give tenants confidence that their belongings are looked after, while extended access hours let them reach their units when it is most convenient."

The demand for storage in Lubbock has been shaped by population growth, business activity, and the practical realities of life transitions that leave households and companies in need of additional space. By broadening its drive-up inventory and maintaining flexible month-to-month terms, Valora Storage aims to keep pace with those shifting needs.

Valora Storage is a self-storage company based in Lubbock, Texas, operating two locations that offer self-storage facilities, general storage, record storage, and business storage. The company provides clean, secure, drive-up units with month-to-month leases, 24-hour security, gated entry with personalized keypad codes, and daily on-site checks. Additional offerings include climate-controlled record storage and outdoor parking for vehicles, recreational vehicles, boats, and trailers.
