Magnetize ME Expands Web Design and Development Service for Small Businesses Across Atlanta and North Georgia

November 20, 2026

WOODSTOCK, GA - November 20, 2026 -
Magnetize ME, a local SEO and web design agency based in Woodstock, Georgia, is addressing a persistent problem among small and medium-sized businesses: dated or drag-and-drop builder websites that load slowly, break on mobile phones, and prove difficult to update. The agency rebuilds these sites with search structure planned from the outset, serving clients throughout Atlanta and North Georgia.

Many small business owners delay replacing older websites, even when those sites cost them visibility and leads. Drag-and-drop builder templates often carry excess code that slows load times, and sites built without mobile users in mind can display poorly on the devices most visitors now use. Magnetize ME treats a website as a working sales tool rather than a static digital brochure, planning for search visibility and visitor actions before any design work begins.

The Magnetize ME web design service follows a four-stage process. The first stage covers planning, during which the team maps pages, goals, and target keywords while reviewing competitor sites. The second stage focuses on design, producing a clean, on-brand, mobile-friendly layout. The third stage involves building the site on WordPress with tracking in place so that performance can be measured after launch. The final stage of the service covers testing and launch, confirming that pages function correctly before the site goes live. Businesses may choose custom builds or template-based designs depending on budget and requirements.

"When a local business comes to the table, the first thing addressed is not color or layout but structure," said Michelle Edwards, owner of Magnetize ME. "Each page is planned around what people are searching for and the actions taken once they arrive, whether that is a call, a form, or a visit. A site built that way earns its keep rather than sitting there as an online placeholder."

The agency plans site structure around search from the start rather than adding optimization after a site is finished. Clean page structure and fast load times form the foundation, and additional SEO work can build on that base over time. Edwards noted that planning search considerations early tends to reduce rework later.

"Replacing a website that no longer performs does not need to be a drawn-out ordeal," Edwards said. "The four stages keep the process clear, and tracking is set up before launch so results can be seen rather than guessed at. Ownership of the site, content, domain, and data stays with the client throughout."

Magnetize ME works with small and medium-sized businesses on web design, local SEO, and online marketing. The agency operates on month-to-month terms rather than long-term contracts and limits its roster to one business per industry within a given geographic area to avoid conflicts of interest. Clients retain full ownership of their website, content, domain, and data.

Founded as a digital marketing agency serving Atlanta and North Georgia, Magnetize ME focuses on helping local businesses attract customers through search. The company is located in Woodstock, Georgia.
