

Keathley Landscaping Highlights NDS Certified Drainage Contractor Services Ahead of El Nino Season

November 19, 2026

GARLAND, TX - November 19, 2026 -
Keathley Landscaping is advising area homeowners to address yard drainage problems before the anticipated heavy rains of a historic El Nino season arrive. The company, which serves the Dallas region and surrounding communities, warns that unresolved drainage issues can lead to significant and costly home damage that many insurance policies do not cover.

As an NDS certified drainage contractor, the company specializes in diagnosing and resolving complex water management problems that often go unaddressed until flooding occurs. Common solutions include French drains, grading, and large custom-designed, buried drainage pipes tailored to the specific conditions of each property.

Logan Keathley, owner of Keathley Landscaping and a licensed drainage specialist, noted that early preparation can make a meaningful difference during periods of prolonged rainfall. "Drainage problems rarely fix themselves, and they tend to get worse during heavy rain events," Keathley said. "An El Nino season raises the stakes because the ground stays saturated longer, which puts foundations, landscaping, and homes at greater risk. Addressing these issues before the rain arrives is far more practical than dealing with the damage afterward."

The company's approach begins with a property assessment that examines landscape grade, soil conditions, and the natural flow of water across a yard. Based on those findings, a customized drainage plan is developed to manage water effectively while preserving the appearance and health of the lawn. This process allows the company to match the right solution to the underlying cause rather than applying a one-size-fits-all fix.

Keathley emphasized that complex problems often require a methodical approach. "Every yard behaves differently when it rains," Keathley said. "The goal is to understand where the water comes from and where it needs to go, then design a system that handles it reliably over the long term. That is the value of working with someone who focuses on drainage specifically."

Proper drainage offers benefits beyond flood prevention. Effective water management helps protect a home's foundation, maintains a healthier lawn, and reduces standing water that can attract mosquitoes and other insects. These factors are among the reasons the company encourages homeowners to evaluate drainage conditions before seasonal weather patterns intensify.

As a provider of residential drainage fate Texas homeowners can turn to, the company serves Fate, Rockwall, Wylie, Plano, Allen, Frisco, McKinney, Richardson, and additional communities throughout the greater Dallas area. In addition to drainage work, the company offers sod installation, landscape lighting, stonework, retaining walls, flowerbeds, hardscapes, patio covers, outdoor kitchens, firepits, fence repair, and tree trimming and removal.

Keathley Landscaping has operated since 2002, providing landscaping and outdoor construction services to homeowners across the Dallas region. The company focuses on practical, long-lasting solutions and tailored project planning that reflects the specific needs of each property. Through its drainage certification and broad range of landscaping services, the company continues to support homeowners seeking functional and well-maintained outdoor spaces.
