October 27, 2026 -
Tristar Automotive, a full-service repair shop serving Santa Rosa, California, and Sonoma County since 1991, is drawing attention to its auto repair operations as more drivers seek to extend the life of their vehicles through routine maintenance. The shop reports a perfect record with the California Bureau of Automotive Repair across more than three decades of operation.

The focus on preventive care reflects a broader trend in which vehicle owners aim to manage repair costs through regular upkeep rather than reactive fixes. Tristar Automotive auto repair services include factory-scheduled maintenance, automotive tune-ups, engine service and replacement, transmission service and repair, brake service and repair, air conditioning service, and suspension and steering work. The shop also operates a smog check station to help drivers meet California emissions requirements.

Routine tasks such as oil changes, fluid checks, and filter replacements form the foundation of the shop's work. Technicians use current engine diagnostics tools to identify potential issues before they develop into larger problems, an approach intended to reduce vehicle downtime for both individual drivers and fleet operators. Fleet maintenance remains a focus area, with regular inspections and preventive service for operators managing multiple vehicles.

"A clean record with the California Bureau of Automotive Repair over more than thirty years reflects how the shop approaches every job," said Daniel Erdman of Tristar Automotive. "Preventive maintenance remains the most dependable way to keep a vehicle running over time. When drivers address small concerns early, they often avoid the larger repairs that come from neglected service."

The shop's engine service includes rebuilding, cooling system flush and repair, and the installation of Jasper remanufactured engines, which carry a three-year or 100,000-mile nationwide warranty. Brake service encompasses inspections, brake fluid checks, repairs, and replacements. The company reports that its technicians hold ASE certification and that communication with customers continues throughout each repair.

"Transparency matters to drivers who want to understand what their vehicle needs and why," Erdman said. "The team of ASE-certified technicians handles everything from routine service to complex repairs, and keeping customers informed at each step is central to how the shop operates."

Tristar Automotive also offers after-hours drop-off, allowing customers to leave vehicles outside standard service times.
