Nova Warranty Expands Extended Auto Warranty Coverage to Include Latest Model Year Vehicles

October 29, 2026

WILMINGTON, DE - October 29, 2026 -
Nova Warranty, a direct administrator of vehicle service programs for luxury, exotic, and daily-driver vehicles, has updated its eligibility guidelines to accept model years spanning 2005 through 2027, broadening access for owners of newer automobiles seeking coverage after factory protection ends.

The updated eligibility criteria accommodate mileage bands ranging from 1,000 to 130,000 miles and allow a single application to cover up to five vehicles. The make list now spans mainstream and luxury marques alike, including Tesla, Rivian, Porsche, BMW, Mercedes-Benz, Bentley, Rolls-Royce, Aston Martin, Maserati, Ferrari, Lamborghini, McLaren, and Lotus.

Nova Warranty administers two vehicle protection plans. The Nova Powertrain plan covers the engine, transmission, drive axle, basic electrical components, cooling, and brakes, along with round-the-clock roadside assistance, towing, locksmith service, rental car reimbursement, and trip interruption support. The Nova Superior plan extends that coverage to suspension, steering, air conditioning and heating, the fuel system, anti-lock braking, turbos and superchargers, all-wheel drive and 4x4 systems, the differential, and hi-tech electronics such as sensors, power window and seat motors, the factory navigation module, the sunroof motor, and the factory rear-view camera.

"The decision to include the newest model years reflects how long many drivers now keep their vehicles," said a spokesperson for Nova Warranty. "Owners of both everyday cars and high-value exotics are looking for repair coverage that continues well beyond the manufacturer period, and the updated guidelines are intended to meet that need across a wider range of vehicles."

Repairs under either plan can be completed at any licensed dealership or ASE-certified repair facility nationwide. Each plan carries a 30-day money-back guarantee, and a free warranty quote can be completed in seconds through a three-step online form or by phone.

"Transparency remains central to how the plans are structured," the spokesperson added. "Drivers can review coverage details, request a quote, and compare the two plans without committing, which gives them a clear understanding of costs before making any decision."

Nova Warranty notes that a vehicle service program is not technically a warranty. The company uses the term extended auto warranty for marketing reference only and functions as a direct administrator of repair coverage that applies once a manufacturer's warranty expires.

The company reports more than 13,000 customer reviews referenced on its site, and Nova Warranty reviews have reflected feedback on staff professionalism and claims handling. The company specializes in coverage for exotic cars, supercars, luxury vehicles, and daily drivers.

Nova Warranty is a provider of vehicle service programs headquartered in Wilmington, Delaware.
