

Monster Cornhole Enters Final Stretch of Season 4 as Worldwide Standings Tighten

November 23, 2026

Symmes Township, Ohio - November 23, 2026 -
Monster Cornhole, a competitive cornhole series connecting players across the globe through a unified standings system, has entered the closing weeks of its fourth season, with the leaderboard tightening ahead of the December 31 season deadline. The series, which places casual backyard competitors and seasoned professionals on the same worldwide ladder, is seeing heightened activity as players position themselves for a share of the prizes available each season.

Season 4 awards a total prize pool of 26,000 dollars, distributed among top finishers through a structured points system. Players accumulate points by participating in Blind Draw tournaments, with up to 23 Blind Draws counting toward an individual standing and a maximum contribution of 805 points. Tournament formats include Switcholios, Round Robins, and single and double elimination brackets, all open to participants without a membership fee and requiring a minimum of six players to qualify.

The standings determine a range of awards at the close of each season. The top player receives the Monster

Champion Package, which includes a custom jersey, travel and hotel coverage, and entry to major cornhole events. The top 750 players earn prizes such as cornhole bags, entry tickets to ACO Majors, and series merchandise, while a separate drawing among the top 1,000 players awards a Tailgator Package for the ACO World Championships.

Frank "the Cornhole Dude" Geers, founder of Monster Cornhole, noted that the series was built to give players at every level a reason to keep competing throughout the year. "The idea behind Monster Cornhole is that a backyard player in one town and a tournament veteran in another can appear on the same worldwide board and chase the same recognition," Geers said. "As Season 4 winds down, the margins between placements are narrower than ever, and that is exactly the kind of finish the standings system was designed to create."

The series also encourages local organizers to participate as tournament directors. Directors register with Monster Cornhole, host and manage events in their areas, and use tournament tokens to run qualifying competitions, extending the reach of the standings into new communities. Sponsorship opportunities are available as well, allowing businesses to connect with a broad audience of cornhole enthusiasts through tailored partnership arrangements.

Geers added that community growth remains central to the series. "Every director who runs an event and every player who signs up adds to a global network, and that network is what makes the standings meaningful under the Monster Cornhole Unleash the Beast banner," he said.

With the Season 4 deadline set for December 31, players have been reminded to complete prize submissions to remain eligible for season awards. The series will continue into future seasons, carrying forward its model of open, membership-free competition and worldwide rankings.

Monster Cornhole is a competitive cornhole series that organizes Blind Draw tournaments, maintains worldwide standings, awards seasonal prizes, supports local tournament directors, and offers sponsorship opportunities for a global community of cornhole players. Season updates, event announcements, and leaderboard news are shared regularly through the Monster Cornhole facebook page, where players and organizers follow the race toward the season finale.

###

For more information about Monster Cornhole, contact the company here:Monster CornholeFrank "the Crrnhole Dude" Geers513.850.3803fgeers@americancornhole.comAmerican Cornhole Organization (ACO)7832 Glendale Milford RdCamp Dennison, Ohio 45111United States

Monster Cornhole

Monster Cornhole is an exciting standings series where players can compete in as many Blind Draw tournaments as they like to climb the Monster Standings and win incredible prizes.

Website: https://www.monstercornhole.com/

Email: fgeers@americancornhole.com

Phone: 513.850.3803

