

Lil' Einstein's Learning Academy Announces Limited Daycare and Preschool Openings at Old Baltimore Pike Location in Newark

October 30, 2026

October 30, 2026 -

Lil' Einstein's Learning Academy - Old Baltimore Pike has announced a limited number of available enrollment openings at its Newark, Delaware location. The announcement comes as families throughout the area seek structured childcare and early education programs for the months ahead.

The academy serves children from six weeks to twelve years of age, offering programs that span infant care, toddler development, preschool readiness, before and after school support, and seasonal summer camp. With capacity constraints common across the childcare sector, the center is confirming that spots remain open across several of its age-based programs.

Lil' Einstein's Learning Academy maintains hours from 6:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. on weekdays. Its programs are organized around the developmental stages of each age group, from sensory and motor skill activities for infants to literacy and numeracy preparation for children transitioning toward kindergarten.

"The current openings give area families an opportunity to secure placement in programs that are often at capacity," said a representative of Lil' Einstein's Learning Academy - Old Baltimore Pike. "Each program is built around the specific needs of the children it serves, from the youngest infants to school-age students who join for before and after school care."

The infant program focuses on individualized care plans and age-appropriate activities within a setting equipped with cribs and sensory toys. The toddler program emphasizes language development, motor skills, and social interaction through structured play. For children aged three to five, the preschool curriculum centers on early literacy, numeracy, and critical thinking in classrooms designed to encourage creativity and exploration.

The academy also provides before and after school care for children attending Newark Charter School and West Park Place Elementary, including homework assistance and recreational activities. During the summer months, its camp program offers themed weeks, field trips, and activities spanning arts and crafts, sports, science experiments, and outdoor play.

"Demand for quality early childhood programs continues across the Newark community," the representative added. "Confirming availability now allows parents to plan ahead and understand which programs can accommodate their children."

The center emphasizes communication with families as part of its daily operations, including reports on meals, rest, and daily routines for younger children. Families are also encouraged to share updates about changes at home that may affect a child's day, supporting continuity between home and the classroom.

Lil' Einstein's Learning Academy - Old Baltimore Pike is a Daycare and Preschool facility located in Newark, Delaware. The academy provides care and early education for children from six weeks to twelve years of age across infant, toddler, preschool, and school-age programs, along with a seasonal summer camp. The center focuses on creating a safe, nurturing, and enriching environment that supports the developmental needs of each child it serves.
